Teachers' Assn. Boycotts Norwalk Schools

The Little Lake City School District operates 12 elementary schools in Norwalk and Santa Fe Springs, a few miles northeast of Long Beach, teaches 8,000 children through the eighth grade, and is the center of an un-precedented and raging educational controversy.

The California Teachers' Association, by far the largest organization of professional educators in the state, has placed "sanctions" against the district-in effect, a

The district, in 1960, began assigning regular homework—from the first grade on. It began disciplining children, flunking them, grading them on competitive

Little Lake is the first school district in history to be "sanctioned" (or hoycotted) by the powerful C.T.A., which voted itself that power only last April.

In brief, the Teachers' Association charges the district with harassment and ridicule of teachers, with creating a situation where 50 per cent of the teaching staff has resigned in two years, with bringing about the resigning of 9 of 11 principals in three years, with bringing unfair charges against teachers, with conducting secret ratings of teachers, and with interference by the hoard in administrative affairs,

In return, the superintendent, William Stanley, and the president of the board, F. Lawrence Plotkin, deny the charges. They accuse the C.T.A. of attempting to change the community's policy on "fundamental" education, of making false statements, and of fomenting a recall action to bring a return to "progressive" education

ings are being held in homes and halfs, debates rage. To quote Plotkin, a Norwalk attorney:

Parent is fighting parent, child is fighting child. We have considerable unrest.

The effect of the sanctions imposed by C.T.A. remain to be seen. The teacher group specializes in placement of teachers, will no longer refer its members to Little Lake for jobs. The C.T.A. also has an influence on teachers'college and other placement services.

"If the sanction affects schools like Long Beach State, it may have a serious effect here over a period of (Continued Page A-7, Col. 1)

Exile From Cuba Tells How Reds 'Killed' Country

This is the story—as told to Harry Karns, The Independent, Press-Telegram's chief editorial writer-of how communism wrecked the life of a Cuban patriot. Jose Serra, 42, was an accountant in Cuba who refused to collaborate with the Communists who took over the company he worked for. The Reds terrorized his family until he finally obtained passports for his wife and two daughters and moved to Long Reach. These articles spell out in dramatic detail the tragedy of Cuba.

CAREFUL! BABY CAN BITE

TOOTHSOME SMILE on the face of 4-month-old Denette Anderson, held by her mother, Ethyl, of 6841 Millmark Ave., is not entirely on the up-and-up. Her father, Dr. Merle Anderson, a dentist, made a set of false teeth for the baby as a gag. But Denette's gums are outgrowing the dentures, and they will no longer fit in a day or two. "She looks like a chipmunk in them," said Mrs. Anderson. "I don't think they do a thing for her.'

Liberal Loses to Connally in Texas Race

DALLAS (UPI)-Former Navy Secretary John B. Connally, a conservative, won the Democratic nomination for governor of Texas Saturday night in a runoff election against a New Frontier liberal.

Connally's victory over 36-year-old attorney Don Yarborough paved the way for a rip-roaring Democratic-Republican campaign for the November election. The GOP mounted its biggest bid for the office since reconstruction days behind candidate Jack Cox, 40, a Democrat who turned Republican less than a year ago.

Connally, a 45-year-old Fort Worth oilman who quit the Kennedy cabinet to run, led Yarborough throughout the night. He is a close friend of Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, but received no public support from Johnson.

Yarborough, who ran un successfully for lieutenant governor in 1960, campaigned as a Kennedy New Frontiersman, although he received no endorsement from the Presi-Returns to the Texas Election Bureau from 352 of the state's 254 counties, including 222 complete, gave Connally 554,959 votes to 532,417 for estimated at 1,100,000. "I believe the people of

L.a.C. Says: Tuesday's Election

During the past week in our daily Independent column we have discussed the five bond issues to be voted on at the Tuesday election. We have stated our reasons for voting "No" on all but one of the issues. We recommend a "Yes" vote on No. 3 and a "No" vote on the other four bond issues. We reluctantly take this attitude. But we feel we have reached a point where state bonds should be confined to only those programs that are essential and that cannot be financed by local areas or private financing. Some of the issues do not even give definite information as to how and where the money will be used.

As to recommendations for individual candidates for elective offices, we are confining our views to these offices where Republican candidates have competition among themselves. We do not presume to make suggestions for the Democratic candidates.

For Governor we recommend Richard Nixon because we consider him the best qualified for the office. However, we would fully support either of his Republican opponents in the final election.

For Lieutenant Governor-George Christopherwho, as Mayor of San Francisco, has proven himself to be a sound administrator and a good campaigner.

For Secretary of State-Frank M. Jordan, who has held that office many years.

For State Treasurer-John A. Busterud-at present a member of the State Assembly.

For Attorney General-Tom Coakley-a Superior Court Judge. We believe Judge Coakley would be a good opponent for the incumbent, Stanley Mosk, in the November election.

For U. S. Senator-Sen, Thomas H. Kuchel, who has seniority and who has an excellent chance for

State Legislature-State Senator from Los Angeles County-Patrick McGee, a former State Assemblyman and at present a Los Angeles city councilman. He has been a good friend to Long Beach and deserves our support.

Assembly candidates. In the 44th District-western part of city—there is no competition. In the 39th District we recommend a vote for George Deukmejian, who we believe qualified and deserving of sup-

Judicial. Of the 47 court seats to be voted on, in only three is there competition, For office No. 2 we recommend Judge Clement D. Nye. For office No. 44 we recommend a vote for Leonard A. Diether, and for office No. 47, where there are 15 candidates, we recommend a vote for Frederick A. Kepka, who has served as a commissioner of the local Superior Court.

School. For Superintendent of Public Instruction we recommend Cecil A. Hardesty-for many years superintendent of the San Diego school system. Nine candidates are seeking this office being vacated by Roy Simpson. Mr. Hardesty has been endorsed by the State Association of School Administrators.

County Assessor. We recommend a vote for John S. Gibson Jr., a long-time member of the L. A. city council from the San Pedro area.

Voters should recognize the fact that this is an important election. It involves bond issues of almost a billion dollars. It also calls for nomination of candidates to oppose the Democratic candidates in November. It is not so much how you vote that is important -but that you discharge your duty as a good citizen to vote.-L.A.C.

Cuba is ideally located for physical assault as well. well as propaganda assault, which she is already carrying out, against her neighbors. Cuba is an arsenal and distributing point of Communist weapons.

Except for the United States, Cuba now has more military might than any other republic in the Amer-Icas. And a former Soviet general, Enrique Lister, is a top adviser on the use of this strength.

Every large city of Latin America has been disrupted by demonstrations of violence of Fidelista mobs. Communist agents åre working in every Latin American' country.

All this is in keeping with Fidel Castro's promise in a speech in Hayana on Feb. 4, 1962, that revolution will sweep Latin America "like a march of giants."

Bridge Builders Practice Safety First

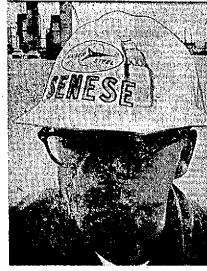

STEEL: CHIEF BILL CHOATE .. We aren't going to lose anyone"

ENGINEER: J. M. CURRAN No man goes up against his will

PROJECT MGR. JERRY SENESE Helmet mirror his badge of office

There is a saying among bridgemen that, for every million dollars a span costs it will take a human life.

Against those odds the 6.060-foot Vincent Thomas Bridge will kill 24 construction workers before it is completed across the San Pedro Channel in late 1963.

"That saying is utlerly, absolutely and com-pletely obsolete," said Bill Choate, a lanky eigar-chewing construction chief who has sent men scrambling up the world's biggest and most dangerous bridge jobs.

These jobs have included the Golden Gate Bridge where 11 men plunged to their deaths, 10 in a single accident and most recently the 700-foot high Glen Canyon span in snulheast Utah.

"The Glen Canyon Bridge cost $41/2 million and there wasn't a single fatality," Choate explained.

"This is dangerous work," he admitted and then point-

Ax Fracas Pair Still Critical

Two men who, police said were beaten by a confessed ax killer Friday night remained in critical condition Saturday in local hospitals, A third man struck with the ax died from his injuries.

Arnold Raymond Holmes 50, of 1029 Maine Ave., suffered an ax wound at the base of his skull and was taken to Memorial Hospital, Ford Waite, 60, of the same ad dress, was in Harbor General Hospital with cuts, bruises and internal injuries.

The man identified as their assailant, Jimmie J. Deal, 28year-old refinery worker of 975 Park Circle, was booked for murder in the death of the third victim, Leonard S. Bartells, 43, of 1031 Maine

POLICE SAYD Deal admitted felling Bartells and Holmes with a heavy ax in an alley brawl that stemmed from an argument about Deal's dog.

Waite, police said, was beaten by Deal with his fists la few moments earlier. Deal said he had tied his dog in an alley behind the house Waite and Holmes shared, and that Waite released the dog, Deal argued with Waite then struck him several times police said.

LATER, Holmes and Bar tells arrived at Deal's house and called him outside where they began beating him, Deal said. He ran back into his house and got the ax.

He went back out to the alley where the two men awaited him. As they approached him to continue the fight, he swung the ax at them, he said. Both men fell to the ground, where they were found a few moments later by police. Deal was standing near them, officers

Richard Haley, director of personnel services for the T.A. southern division, says "Little Lake teachers are resigning in droves." He says 50 per cent have resigned in two years, that nine of the II principals on the payroll in 1959 are no longer with the district.
Supt. Stanley replies: "We have a survey, made by U.C.L.A. here in 1959, which predicts an annual turnover for this district of 25 per cent. In two years, that's 50 per cent. Before 1959, our resignation rate was 35 per cent. The resignation rate in the next district is 30 per cent. Of those 11 principals, five left here for promotions, one was demoted, two are still with us."

Haley charges: "Teachers have been made to feelby the board, and to some extent by the administration, that they are held in mighty low regard."

Plotkin replies: "Untrue." He points out the board has reduced class sizes from 33 to 28, spent $150,000 for teacher aids, relieved teachers of lunch-hour chores, and otherwise boosted teacher morale. "The teacher is the closest to the child. It wouldn't make sense to do what we are charged with.

Haley charges the board with making threats of pay cuts. Stanley cites the pay scale—starting at $5,400 and going to $9,000, with $750 extra for those who teach 29 days of summer school. Only two teachers received pay cuts in two years, he says, and both because of

Haley charges Stanley and the board with conducting

Stanley replies: "We have a usual and normal rating system here. But we do put down the teachers' faults, too. Before 1959, the faults were omitted, but the teacher was not rehired. However, with no list of faults, the teacher's record was good when he applied elsewhere."

The new rating system, Stanley says, is open, the old was not. "The C.T.A, has just reversed the picture Haley charges Stanley with refusing to meet with a rating follow-up team. Stanley says he was invited to meet the team-in 1,050 wanted more emphasis on reading.

Indonesians, Dutch Play Deadly Game

By HAL McCLURE BIAK, West New Guinea UP)-Indonesian paratroopers Dutch military men predict will continue to pound West New Guinea's Bird's Head area desnite current U.N. efforts to settle the dispute over this area.

"And there's precious little we can do about it," one Dutch Marine officer confid-

In the last month Indonesian C-47 Dakotas carrying parachutists have easily penetrated Dutch coastal defenses

THE INVADING transports flying without lights, usually strike at dawn to dump their human cargoes into jungles.

So far the Dutch have been able to shoot down only one Dakota,

The Dutch estimate more than 500 Indonesians—a few tough professionals but for the most part civilian "volunteers"-are spread from Kaimana in the south to Sorong on the western tip of the mainland.

The bulk of the invaders are in the Vogelkop Peninsula-called Bird's Head be cause of its shape-or just south of it, in the Fak Fak

AS Λ precautionary, move and to give the military more freedom of action, Dutch women and children have been evacuated from coastal towns near the guerrillas,

"It becomes a game of hide and seek," says Col. G.K.R. de Roos, commander of Royal Marines in New Guinca. "They hide in the bush when our boys come along."

The guerrillas, say the Dutch, are on a fifth column mission to convince Papuans and pro-Indonesian residents they should unite behind them to throw out the Dutch.

Both sides have claimed victories in sporadic jungle fighting. The Dutch apparently have succeeded in isolating larger towns - thus preventing the invaders from contacting known pro-Indonesian

THIS LEAVES only inhospitable, disease-ridden mountains and jungles as a field of operations for the Indonesians. The invaders have found little sympathy among the Papuans, the Dutch claim.

About 700,000 Papuans live in this California size part of New Guinea which is remembered- unfavorably-by U.S. forces who fought here in World War II.

For the most part, whether they live in huts over a malarial coastal swamp or huddle for warmth in the chilly central highlands, the Papu-ans couldn't care less about what is going on,

THEY SPEAK more than 200 known languages and dialects. They eat pork, sweet potatoes or sago made from bamboo. Some still hunt for heads and prefer human flesh.

ipuans belong to the Melanesian race. Most have never heard of Indonesian President Sukarno or Dutch Queen Juliana, Probably a hundred thousand or so have never seen a white man. Only the coastal Papuans have come under the influence of the Dutch or other seafaring people. Indonesia hopes to win over these coastal Papuans who speak Malay, the lingua franca of the Indonesian Archipelago.

"BUT INSTEAD of being received with open arms, said De Roos, "These Papuans have reported their whereabouts to us."

For this reason, plus expert tracking by Papuan soldiers, the Dutch assert they have been able to locate most of the invaders.

The trackers-all members of the tiny 250 man Papuan Volunteer Corps - seem among the best in the world. They travel light and fast. The volunteers are the nucleus of a proposed Papuan

Most importantly, the Dutch say, the Papuans along the western coastal areas remember their dark, kinkyhaired ancestors were targets of slave-raiding missions dispatched by Indonesian sultans.

THE DUTCH retained West New Guinea when they gave up Indonesia after World War II. Sukarno now says this area should have been included

NEW DELHI (UPI) - In dia's eight-year trade treaty with Communist China expired Saturday, a victim of Communist agression on In dia's northern frontier.

Prime Minister Jawaharla Nehru's government, im mersed in border troubles with China and Pakistan, was paying little attention to the other Communist spearhead in Asia - the pro-Communist rebel and North Vietnamese attacks in Laos.

Although the scene of the latest Communist advance, the Lactian town of Houel Sal, is only 500 airline miles from India's easternmost borders, there has been no reac tion to the Laotian crises here for weeks.

Nehru, who is also foreign minister and the only voice that counts in foreign affairs here, has not mentioned Laos since returning from his vacation April 28. It is also worthy of note that Nehru voiced no objection to the shipment of 5,000 U.S. troops to Thailand, although he did object to the U. N. intervention in Korea in 1950.

THE NEW DELHI-Peiping treaty was signed in 1954, in the sunniest period of Communist China's "peaceful co-existence" with its Asian neighbors.

But trade slowed to a trickle and the warm relations froze after China crushed the 1959 Tibetan reinto Indian territory.

Nehru replied that India the meet,

First Sighter of 'Discs' to Seek Office

NORMAN MARTIN BOISE, Idaho (UPI) - Fifteen years ago bush pilot Kenneth Arnold of Boise was stunned by several blinding flashes over the state of Washington, then started a memorable pursuit after nine "flying saucers."

Tuesday, the 47-year-old businessman, author and discoverer of the first reported unidentified flying objects (UFO), is in pursuit of the chair of Idaho's lieutenant governor.

Arnold said he was seeking public office for the first times despite what he called "repeated ridicule" concern-ing his June 24, 1947 discovalso a candidate.

"I have been repeatedly questioned and investigated," he said, "by such agencies as military intelligence, the FBI, Bureau of Internal Revenue, Central Intelligence, Marine Intelligence, private detective agencies, individuals and just plain busybodies."
That day in 1947, Arnold was flying his small plane over rugged Washington mountains. He explained later in several stories and his own book—"The Coming of the Saucers"—that he was nearly blinded by brilliant flashes of light, then spotted a formation of nine unidentified flying ob-

HE SAID HE chased them. but in a matter of seconds the objects had disappeared. He said the redicule began after he reported the objects to officials "as any patriotic pilot would have done."

Arnold is credited with describing the objects as "flying saucers." He reported that their pattern of flight was similar to a "saucer skipping on rough water."

He said he felt the state of Idaho has forgotten the ridicule he said he suffered for

"There are many people in this town," he told UP1, "who have also seen odd things in

"I'm considered to be a down-to-earth, sensible guy I don't want to think that what I accidentally discovered Is going to have any hearing on my political campaign."

ARNOLD SAID that before he decided to seek office, he had been asked often by businessmen to enter politics. He said he didn't feel the offers were made because of his name, but because "I'm considered a businessman and not a politician."

He finally made up his mind because of a statement by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz. He explained that Goldwater has encouraged conservative businessmen to take part in local politics Arnold said he was a conservative Republican disgruntled with Idaho affairs.

Most of Arnold's several articles and his book have been out of print for years. So have sightings of "flying saucers," or what he called "greatest aeronautical mystery of all times."

Interest High in Tuesday's Primary Election in Orange County

Nearby Orange County political interest is focused on races in new districts shaped in the 1961 reapportionment, with special attention being given the choice of a congressman in the western Orange County 34th Congressional District and its five-Republican, three-Democrat

Three-term State Assemblyman Richard T. Hanna, 47, of Fullerton; former newspaper editor Sam Campbell, Garden Grove; and William J. Spelliscy, 40, Garden Grove, seek the Democratic nomination in the new district, which has no incumbent running.

 \star

ALTHOUGH THE 34TH has registration favoring Democrats 55-45 per cent, the race has attracted five Republicans in a spirited race, Top bidders seem to be Robert Geier, 49, Garden Grove, former field assistant to conservative Congressman James Utt, and John Mc-Grew, 34, Anaheim educator. Other candidates are F. Gordon Chytraus, 34, Los Alamitos, a Buena Park attorney; Philip H. Robertson, 37, Anaheim attorney; and John H. McShane, 37, former disc jockey and now mayor

Assembly districts in the 34th are the 69th (North) and 70th (south). Democrats bidding for the 69th are William E. Dannemeyer, 32, assistant city attorney at Fullerton; Max E. Woods, 37, Buena Park school teacher; and Dennis Murphy, 36, Buena Park public relations man. The lone GOP candidate is John Briggs, 32, Buena Park

A SINGLE GOP ENTRY in the 70th is James E. Whetmore, 44, Los Alamitos attorney and orchestra leader. Six Democrats vying are Russell L. Peachee, 45, Los Alamitos, deputy district attorney; James Dawkins, 40, Garden Grove industrial relations consultant: Lindsay Miller, 31, Westminster public relations consultant; Levi Blad, 30, Garden Grove engineer; Reece Ballard, 47, former Garden Grove police chief; and Ann Snider, 37, Garden Grove operator of a field survey firm.

James B. Utt, incumbent, is unopposed for the GOP nomination in the new 35th Congressional District (part Orange and part San Diego counties), Democrats vying are Wade L. Fite, 37, Encinitas physicist, and Burton Shamsky, 33, Solana Beach attorney

SOME things (quite a number, in fact) keep reminding that the years fly by. One came up this week dicting the June headlines, the celebration of the 25th and I must say I'm delighted anniversary of the opening of the Golden Gate Bridge,

I was there, brother not at the anniversary ob- postcards in the office servance, but at the opening many I haven't had time in 1937. Maybe I paid my way-I'm not sure, but in those days of $5 each freeloading was almost essential to travel,

And so on a sunny afternoon I sat on the grassy bank beside the Golden Gate bridge and watched the U.S. fleet move majestically under the great orange-colored span. Later, I walked/drove across the bridge-a marvel then and still one of the great structures of its kind in the world.

In the intervening quarter of a century, nearly 260 million vehicles have crossed the bridge. Nearly two mil-lion cross it each month, It amuses, rather than disturbs, to think of how many of the people who cross it daily must have been born since of anyone who was there Cincinnati June 17.

Assembly Contest Is Liveliest in L.B.

Some 125,000 voters-60 per cent - of the Long Beach area's newly drawn 32nd Congressional District (formerly 18th) are expected to participate in selecting party nominees in Tuesday's California primary election.

Conversation piece of this area's contests is that in the East Long Beach 39th Assembly District (formerly 70th) where four Republicans and two Democrats are bidding for the seat being vacated by William S. Grant.

There is one other area contest, the bid by Democrats W. Bud deCannis and Joseph J. Johovich for the 32nd District congressional seat of GOP incumbent Craig Hosmer. Hosmer is unopposed on his ticket. The other area Assembly district, the 44th, comprised of West Long Beach, Lakewood and Dominguez, has no contests. Democratic incumbent Joseph M. Kennick, Republican Wilbur R. (Bill) Richardson and Prohibitionist William Jay Sealf are all unopposed.

GOP CONTENDERS IN THE LIVELY 39th race are George Deukmejian, Charles M. Garrison, James A. Hayes and Alvin G. Miller, Democrats are Kenneth W. Appelgate and Bert Bond.

Deukmejian and Hays are attorneys. Garrison is a retired Navy captain and former city councilman, Miller is a retired Army major and a school teacher, Appelgate is an educator at Long Beach City College. Bond is vice mayor of Long Beach

Strictly party affairs since the abolition of crossfiling, the primary voting is limited to candidates of the voter's registration, except for the write-in vote. A voter may write in the name of any candidate not appearing on his ballot. Write-in votes will be counted and some candidates urge voters of opposite parties to give them this write-in vote of confidence.

REDISTRICTING OF 1961 LEFT the 32nd District virtually intact except for its new number, and with its 206,854 registered voters divided about 57-43 per cent in favor of Democrats.

The 32nd's two assembly districts had major changes The 44th added almost all of Lakewood and increased its Democratic registration to roughly a 2 to 1, status. The 39th lost Lakewood but in the process, made it an almost 50-50 district, which from past performance would indicate an even safer district for the GOP.

Governorship Campaign Ends on Note of Irony

MAJOR INTEREST in Tuesday's primary election is at the top of the Republican ballot-the contest between Richard Nixon and Joseph Shell for nomination for governor.

Running with the prestige of a former vice appears that the incumbent Republican, appears now a likely winner. These same factors, however, add glitter to the great campaign effort made by Joe Shell, who moved up to become a real threat in the race though he had never before made a statewide campaign and was not well known outside Southern California

There is another interesting and somewhat ironical phase to this situation. Although it appears the Republicans will name Nixon, there are also some strong evidences Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown in Major interest among local contests centers around Republican nomination in the 39th Assembly District (Long Beach's east side.) This is the position long held by William S. The principal trouble today with the economic system that has in the past given this country its prosperity and high standard of living is excessive governmental intervention-an interference with natural laws. Some of this meddling is motivated by politics. Some of it is inspired by honest but misguided thinking. Some of it is the simple consequence of inexperience an unfamiliarity of administration advisers with what makes a

There is no incentive to the enterprising businessman as he realizes that 52 per cent of his company's earnings and up to 80 or 90 per cent of his own income have to be paid out of an incentive psychology through increasing the profits-so that old factories can be modernized and industrial plants expanded to take care of an increasing demand for goods.

Profits are not just a form of selfishness or greed or inhumaneness, as the radicals in our midst would have the voters believe. Profits are a means of paying wages to investors of capital or of repaying borrowed capital. Man Must Learn to Control Self

EDITOR:

I have noticed several letters recently on the subject of birth control as sort of an overall solution to the problems of our time. The fear of over-population seems to some to be a matter of legislation.

My views on the subject were recently expressed by Adlai Stevenson:

"When I visited Dr. Albert Schweitzer in his primitive hospital in French Equatorial Africa, he told me he considered this the most dangerous period in history. Why, because, he said, heretofore nature has controlled man, but now man has learned to control elemental forces, before he has learned to control himself. For man can control himself only if he understands both himself and the civilization he has created out of his longing for justice and peace."

IT IS LONG past time that we looked into our own beings for the answers to the New Jersey doctors who our problems and assumed our own personal responsibility. The world is made up of human beings and only when each puts his own house in order, will the collective house of the world be orderly. This foolishness of saying, "There ought to be a law" everytime something goes wrong is a real concern of our time. The trend away from personal initiative, placing all responsibility on govern-ment as though it were a thing apart, instead of realizing that we are part of that government and have a right to do our part,

People speak of freedom as though it were an end in itself. Each freedom has its responsibility and only when we exercise both will we have peace and justice.

It indeed seems strange to me that in Marietta Hopkin's letter she would laud stated they would boycott President Kennedy's medical care bill. She states that it would lead our country down the road to socialism.

If she is so concerned about this, why doesn't she also complain how cocialistic" it is for two to the New Jersey hospitals, whose staffs signed the *boycott resolution, to get efederal grants totaling $572,246 to aid construction and for equipment in these hospitals?

Sure, your electric bill is higher; that's because you're using more electricity. Edison customers use more than twice as much today than they did in 1939. But your average cost per kilowatt hour is 21% lower than it was then.

Why so much for your money when the price for almost everything else you use has doubled?

The answer is simple: Edison's 8,000 employees and nearly $1,500,000,000 worth of plant and equipment are geared to just one prime purpose: to provide you with the finest possible electrical service at the lowest possible cost.

Electricity, a manufactured product, is today's biggest bargain. It is made, "packaged" and delivered to homes in Edison territory by local people, whose efforts to help you live better electrically also have kept Edison residential rates among the lowest in the nation.

Nate Brightman, 44, of 4219 Gaviota Ave., is a salesman.

He has a small neat home, a wife, Evelyn, daughter, Lynne, 20, and son, Howard, 15.

He's what you would call a "good guy." He probably won't make the cover of a national magazine, but maybe he should. You get a good feeling about him from some of the things he does.

FOR ABOUT two years now. Nate has been leading a group of blind youngsters through the intricacies of amateur radio --training them so they can get ham licenses.

Once a week he and his son and wife have been going to the North Long Beach YMCA where they work with the blind chil-

"I always thought I was stoo dumb to learn it," said Nate. "But 1 figured I'd study along with Howard. Pretty soon, I found out it wasn't so tough."

The way it worked out both father and son got licenses at the same time. Nhen Howard was 111/2.

Well," admitted Nate, with some prodding from Mrs. Brightman, "Howard got his license the first time he took the exam. I had to take the Morse code twice -I flunked it the first

Long Beach YMCA.

There are a lot of technical details that must be learned to get an FCC hardlicense and they don't give points because you're blind. The Morse Code learning problem wasn't too tough. The NCJW bought records the sightless youngsters could listen to. The diagramatic wiring lessons were a different problem, There were no existing learning aids. Nate devised a method of teaching through the touch system. He glued heavy twine to stiff backing. The blind youngsters traced the diagrams with their fingers and learned their lessons. Of the half a dozen who have been in the program four now have novice licenses and one a general license as amateur radio operators. Two are soon going to take the final tests for general licenses. * * * *

JUST the other night, the Long Beach section of the National Council of Jewish Women took note of Nate's activity. They awarded him a special plaque for "dedicated service."

"My wife helped with the preparation of the twine diagrams," Nate (K6OSC) said. "Another ham, Walt Baysinger (K6ANY) was also involved in getting the program going.

There are several ways that a man can pay the price of a new Cadillac car-and find himself in possession of an automobile of far less stature.

Because there are many motorists currently considering the purchase of their next car, we feel that it is in the public interest to enumerate these ways of going astray.

1. Assume that the purchase price of a new Cadillac car is higher than it actually is, (Eleven models of other makes now cost more than the lowest-priced Cadillac model.)

2. Fail to appreciate that the basic price of a new Cadillac includes important things that are extra on many other cars. (Including automatic transmission, power steering and power braking.)

3. Neglect to find out from a Cadillac dealer what your present car is worth in trade on the "car of cars". (He is especially anxious this spring to welcome new owners into the Cadillac family.)

If you take one of these detours, think of all the pleasures you could be missing.

There is Cadillac's styling-so majestic that it attracts attention wherever it goes. There is Cadillac's comfort-so wonderful that every journey is a brief vacation. And there is Cadillac's performance-so great that it is simply without rival,

So we suggest that you play it safe—and get all the facts from your dealer soon. You might be very close to a Cadillac.

CORNER FIRST & PINE STS.

There they sat in the cast room of Community Hospital-a group of high school boys, their arms and legs immobilized in plaster.

No emergency, Just another meeting of Explorer Post 273—the Medical Explorers—exploring the possibilities of taking up a medical career.

"They had plaster from floor to ceiling," recalls the post adviser, Dr. Robert Griffiths,

THERE WERE lots of laughs. Everyone put a cast

Bob Hershner, 18, a Millikan High senior, remembers the night well-but not for the taughs. It was the night he made a big decision. Orthopedic surgery, he decided, was for him.

For Hershner, Dr. Max Negri, who arrived carrying a chest of what the boys called "carpenter's tools," showed the way. Dr. Negri is one of the members of the Long Beach Medical Association who has devoted his time to the post, to describe the life of a doctor.
Young Hershner, 2450 Vuelta Grande, isn't carried away by the glamour of the profession, however.

"It is going to be a lot of work," he admits. Gary Haskett, 17, of 2929 Nipomo Ave., didn't make up his mind until this year's next-to-the-last meeting,

THAT WAS THE night Dr. Jerome Klingbeil, plastic surgeon, fold of his specialty and showed "before and photographs of patients.

"Dr. Klingbeil had a great influence on me," Haskett

Dr. Griffiths, the adviser, thinks "Ben Casey" hams up medicine. But he believes there is a basic excitement in being a physician, and this he tries to convey.

The basic excitement has proved too much for some. One Explorer fainted while witnessing a surgical op-

"I hate medicine," he told the doctor.

OTHERS are undecided.

'I'm not sure," says Larry Bloom, 17, of 2344 Roycroft Ave. "But it looks pretty good at the moment, Basic science and pathology are especially interesting to me." Pathology was the theme of the first Explorer session.

Drs. Eugene Cahill and Richard Steiner demonstrated the science in the hospital laboratory. At later meetings the Explorers heard Dr. Charles Morrell on surgery, Dr. Rudolph E. Chaney on radiology, Dr. Harry Orme on pediatrics, Dr. Lavane Sansum on internal medicine, Dr. Jack Lynn on urology, Dr. Jerry Flint on psychiatry, Dr. William Hyman on neurosurgery and Dr. Griffiths on general practice.

3 Tots Watch Father Shoot Mother, Self

FAIR LAWN, N. J. (UPI) An off-duty policeman Saturday shot to death his estranged wife with his service revolver and then killed iimself after an afternoon visit with their three children who watched the shootings

Police said that Robert J. Collins, 33, who served on the New York City police force, killed his wife Margaret, 28, when she met him and the children in the parkng lot of a restaurant, Collins, separated from his wife who lived in nearby Paterson, had spent the day with his children and was returning them to his wife when the shootings took place officers said.

Investigators said the three children, John, 3, Chris. 2, and Carol, 6, were in their father's car when he shot his wife as she drove up beside him in another auto,

Call Extra Heip to Put Out Fire

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI)-When Fred McNamara noticed a smoldering fire in the back of his rubhish truck, he drove to the nearest fire station.

But neither firemen nor apparatus was there. They were putting out a mattress fire in a hotel.

McNamara was stymied, but a clerk in the firehouse came to his aid. He telephoned firemen at another fire station,

DR. ROBERT GRIFFITHS DELIVERS LECTURE AT EXPLORER POST 273 MEETING

There were field trips. At Memorial Hospital they saw the heart-lung machine in operation. They toured the Veterans Administration Hospital twice. At one session there they visited Dr. Nathaniel B. Kurnick's research laboratory and saw the bone-marrow bank he initiated. At UCLA Medical Center they attended a class in the medical school and saw a demonstration in the fitting of artificial limbs.

Our Explorers have been able to talk informally with doctors without any barriers," Dr. Griffiths says. "Our aim is to help them make a decision regarding a career to give them some concept of what it's like to be a doctor."

THE CONCEPT has startled some, motivated others. Dr. John H. Sewak, surgeon, laughs when he recalls the time he invited three boys to "scrub in" on an operation at 7:30 on a Saturday morning.
"I had been operating most of the night," he says.

"When the boys arrived for the 7:30 operation, one of

"'Gee, do you doctors always get up this early?'"
At the other extreme is Frank Cutler, 16, of 4473 Cerritos Drive, a Poly High senior.

"I've wanted to be a surgeon since I was 5 or 6 years old," he says.

The Explorer program has convinced him beyond all doubt.

OPENATO EVERYONE 65 OR OVER!

NEW! GOLDEN 65 Health Insurance offers up to $15,000 in benefits!

Now! Anyone 65 or over ... regardless of past or present health...can get both in and out-ofhospital protection!

- EVERYBODY ACCEPTED
- NO HEALTH QUESTIONS
- NO PHYSICAL EXAM

Now; from Continental Casualty—the insurance company that originated and offered the first nationwide health insurance plan for all senior citizens—comes the GOLDEN-65 health insurance program!

65-PLUS offers basic protection

The 65-PLUS plan; introduced back in 1957, was the first Hospital-Surgical plan of its kind. Today, hundreds of thousands of senior citizens across the nation now have this protection.

10,000-RESERVE is for the big bills

10,000 Reserve is designed for really big expenses and to start paying benefits when bills get "too big" for you to handle, or most of the benefits of your basic plan have "run out." To do this, 10,000 RESERVE has a "deductible" feature that works very much the same as the "deductible" feature used in auto collision insurance. Each calendar year after you, or 65-Plus, or any other basic plan you may have, has paid the first $500 of cligible expenses, the 10,000-Reserve plan goes into effect and pays 75% of all further eligible expenses during that calendar year up to a lifetime maximum of $10,000. Then, after any proven continuous 6-month period without treatment, you are eligible again for another $10,000 in benefits. As you can see, the 10,000-Reserve plan in no way conflicts with any basic plan you may now have. It is the in no way conflicts with any basic plan you may now have. It is the perfect "companion" policy to add to any basic plan.

5,000-MEDICAL plan is for out-of-hospital expenses Anyone who joins either 65 Plus or 10,000 Reserve, or both, has the extra opportunity to join the 5,000-MEDICAL plan. This extra plan offers protection against out-of-hospital expenses and also features a deductible. Each calendar year after your eligible out-of-hospital expenses have reached $100, the 5,000-MEDICAL plan takes over and pays 75% of all further eligible expenses during that calendar year up to a lifetime maximum of $5,000. Then, after any proven continuous 6-month period without treatment, you are eligible again for another $5,000 in benefits. This is the first plan of its kind ever offered to anyone and everyone 65 or over!

As long as you pay your premium, your policy will never be cancelled, no changes will ever be made unless done so to all policyholders in your state. Of course, you have the right to cancel your policy at any time. MONEY BACK GUARANTEE: After you have received your policy, or policies, and examine it, if you are not 100% satisfied, return it within ten days and your first month's premium will be refunded.

Under 65?

If you are 64 now, plan to join one or more of these plans when you reach 65. Clip the coupon now and save it. Mail it to us within 30 days before or after your 65th birthday and you will be enrolled.

SONS AND DAUGHTERS ENROLL YOUR PARENTS

If you have an older relative in your family, many of you will want to give him or her one or more of these policies and make the premium payments yourself. It's a wise and wonderful idea. Just fill out the enrollment blank and indicate where the premium notices are to be sent.

Income Tax Note: If you declare a parent or relative as a dependent on your Federal Income Tax, your payments of premiums for this health insurance are 100% tax deligible.

Foundation and walls are built for second story construction if ever desired. Ample parking for a minimum of 30 cars. This beautiful madern building is on a corner set back 50 feet from both Willow and Eucalyptus. This property has to be seen to be appreciated and I believe you will be impressed by the deal I have to offer you. Here are some 🔆 highlights on the immediate vicinity:

1. Bank of America opened its newest branch 2 blacks west on Willow St., May 4, 1962.

2. California Motor Yehicle Dept. Is almost immediately starting construction on its new home 2 blocks east on Willow Street.

3. The ribbon cutting coremony connecting Willow St. with Katella was performed May 31, 1962.

I may also add that it is my opinion that this is the only suitable property available in the area for your particular type of business.

For complete information on how you can acquire 3 this property you may contact the owner

RALPH A. INGRAM 440 W. Willow St., Long Beach, Calif.

6 A.M. to 6 P.M., Monday thru Saturday; preferably in person, as a deal like this is too lengthy to explain by letter,

Daddy fixes everything!

Nothing pleases him better than to wipe away fears, by repairing a broken doll, bicycle, or window. Usually that requires a bit of time and only a small expense.

But people . . . with broken arms and legs or other injuries . . . that's something entirely different. The rising cost of medical and hospital care and other expenses that come with today's accidents can wreck the budget of the family that doesn't have adequate accident insurance. We invite you to take advantage of this 24-hours a day protection that will help you reduce unexpected expenses of a minor, serious or fatal accident. (See outline of coverage below.)

The youngest kid on the field produced the biggest performance for the second successive year in the Compton Invitational Saturday night.

Bruce Kidd, an 18-yearold bookworm from Toronto, ran veteran Max Truex of Oxnard Air Force Base and Olympic Games champion Murray Halberg of New Zealand into the ground in the featured 5,000-meter run.

Kidd showed rare racemanship in winning "just about the way I hoped" and setting two American records.

HE WAS timed at 13:43.8 for 5,000 meters, 13:17.4 at three miles. Truex was second in 13:49.6 and 13:22.2, Halberg third in 13:57.6 for the full 5,000. Jim Beatty held the old

A Long Beach State team of Dave Shirley, Darryl Taylor, Gary Patterson and Jim Richardson won the college mile easily in 3:14.8. Richardson anchored in 47.5.

Arizona State established an NCAA record in the open mile relay, winning in 3:05,7 second fastest time ever for the event. Henry Carr on the second leg, and Ulis Williams on the fourth were credited with 45.7 440s.

YOUNG CITY GOLF HEROES GIVE BIG PUSH TO PUTTS

Roger Cleveland and Larry Griggs Jr., a pair of power-packed, pressure-proof young Palmers from Lakewood Golf Club, battle today for the No. 1 prize in Long Beach golfdom - the City Championship

Saturday, Cleveland accomplished what was beginning to seem impossible. He slew the giant. He beat the champion. He ended the two-year title reign and 16-match victory streak of Dick Clover. The score was

Griggs, a red-headed fireball who will wing to San Francisco after today's match to play in the Far West U.S. Open qualifying, advanced Saturday by bombing Skylinks will be the scene of the 36-hole title titanic today, tee-off times at 9 in the morning and I in the afternoon.

TAKING A PAGE FROM HIS Poly High football rulebook which states that the first duty of a quarterback is to remain cool under fire, Cleveland-the quarterbackplayed with the poise of a veteran pro instead of a 17year-old amateur in beating Clover.

"I was confident from the start," said the goodlooking City Junior champion, "and more so when I started out with such a burst, I knew I was hitting the ball well, and that is what counts."

Cleveland birdied the first hole on a five-foot putt, the second on a 15-footer and won the third and fifth on pars. On the third, he received a good break when his 40-foot putt struck the flag pin instead of whizzing over ACKNOWLEDGED TO BE A FINE driver, Roger showed a top drive-iron punch by hitting the greens with a 5-iron on the 465-yard sixth and a 6-iron on the 436yard seventh. Both holes were halved with pars as was the eighth, and the ninth was halved with two-putt birdies leaving Cleveland 4 up at the turn.

He took his first bogey to lose the 10th, but bounced right back to sink a rousing 35-footer to birdie the 11th. It jolted Clover, who was lying only 12 feet from the pin in two.

Both players bogied the wind-whipped 12th and Clover went 3 down again with a 15-foot birdie putt on the 13th

Again faced with a challenge when Clover hit the green with his second wood shot to the 514-yard 14th. Cleveland responded by belting his 3-wood 20 feet from the pin. The hole was halved with birdies and Clover's last bid was quelled. For the match, Cleveland was 3 under par and Having become undisputed king of the sprint world, Fred W. Hooper's Winonly today is looking for longer and richer worlds to conquer.

The sensational fiveyear-old son of Olympia completed an unprecedented sweep of Holly-wood Park's three major sprints here Saturday when he raced to a three-quarter length triumph in the $27,- Hollywood Premiere and seven-furlong Los Angeles Handicaps, Winonly shorted up to take the intriguing five and one-half furlong Express to complete the cycle as he carried Bill Harmatz to his fourth stakes win of the meeting.

As for the remainder of the sprint division, the loss of Winouly would be a welcomed event. Hooper flash horrified the finest speed specialists in the West for a third time in the Express.

Fe., Lakewood High fans remember, but the CIF baseball champion Lancers came within one strike of not even earning a berth in the playoffs.

In its next-to-last Moore League game against Millikan, the Lancers were down by three runs with two out and two strikes on pitcher Jim Strickland in the seventh inning.

One more strike and the game is over and Lakewood is just another team. As it turned out, Strickland took a ball four and the Lancers were still alive.

What came after that is well remembered. Lakewood went on to score four runs, win the game and then the title when it tied Poly in the league finale.

Had Lakewood lost to Millikan, its record would pared to 9-5-1 for the Rams. Poly's 8-5-2 mark would have been good for second place and the Lancers would have been left out of the playoffs.

When this reporter queried coach Ardie Boyd about the narrow escape, he not only recalled it vividly, he gestured with his hands how close that last pitch missed being a strike. It was about one

Said Boyd following the championship game against Montebello: "That win over Millikan was the turning point of the season. My kids didn't know how good they were until they rallied to win that one."

Boyd also cited the first playoff game against Norwalk, in which Lakewood tied the game in the seventh and won it in the

'Miracle Yanks Not 10 Behind'

Everyone has been buzzing about the surprisingly tight American League race this season and wondering why the Yankees aren't 10 games in front

So it was natural that I opened my quiz of Bud Daley on that tone Friday night when the Yankees packed

51,584 citizens into Chavez Ravine for a game with the Angels.

"Why aren't you Yankees 10 games in front by now?" I not-very-tactfully inquired of the former Wilson High

"It's a miracle we're not 10 games behind," snorted the Yankee southpaw, "In fact, with the kind of hitting we've got so far, I'm amazed we're as close as we are, I'm the only one who's hitting — and they don't pay me for that,"
A perusal of Yankee averages bore out Daley's statement, HE is the LEAD-ING Yankee swatter with a robust .600 mark—three hits in five times at-bat! Contrast that phenomenal average with John Blanchard's .256, Hector Lopez' .226, Bill Skowron's .225 and Yogi Berra's .167 (all before Frinight's game-and you begin to see why the Bronx Bombers haven't yet gone into orbit. Even more astonishing is the cold fact that the Yanks boast only two .300 hitters, Clete Boyer and Mickey Mantle . . . and Mantle is injured. With those figures, any other team would be 10 games in arrears at this moment.

BUD DALEY

Top Yankee Hitter!

"I didn't know you were a hitter," laughed another newsman to Daley.

"Heck, I was a better hitter in high school than I was a pitcher," shot back the southpaw. "I hit over .500 in my last year at Wilson High when Frank Followell and I alternated pitching and playing right field."
"Is that right?" gulped the surprised reporter. "What kind of pitching record did you have, anyway?" "Oh, I was 13-1," dead-panned Daley.

With that, the other newsmen fled in further tribute to Daley's ever-present dry humor.

"HOW ABOUT YOUR PITCHING this year?" I continued. "That 2-0 record looks pretty good."

"That looks fine, considering I've pitched only 21 innings," replied Daley. "But don't look at my earned-run-average. That's higher than my batting average."

21 framés, Bud compiled a not-too-scintillating 5.57 ERA, which happens to be NINTH highest on the 11-man staff.

"I know I could get that down with more regular work," insisted Daley. "But how are you going to get much work with guys like Ford, Turley, Terry, Coates, Sheldon, Stafford and Bridges on the same staff?

"I've got one bright side, though, I'm ahead of Arroyo (Luis, whose ERA is a flat 8). Since he's supposed to be the best relief pitcher in baseball, I can brag about being in front of him, anyway.'

ROGER MARIS proved to be as accommodating this June night as he was obnoxious last March in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Obviously he has grown up and learned how to cope with success Maris still isn't a wealth of information, but at least he now is civil when asked civil questions, Everybody around the batting cage held collective breaths, however, when some fellow with a youngster asked the Rajah to pose for a picture with the tyke.

"Be glad to," said Maris . . . and he did. The time wasn't so distant when Roger would turn his back on everyone, youngsters and all.

What is the answer to Roger's turnabout?

"I guess I was off-base before, but so were a lot of you reporters," replied Maris, "Since I had that trouble in Florida this spring, things have been much easier. Newspapermen ask me one or two questions and leave. As long as they don't ask silly questions, and not too

So saying, he departed on the run for the dugout, But that's the way it should be . . . as long as this public figure doesn't clam up and act like a prima donna.

YANKEE WRITERS and officials joined the popular opinion group that thinks Chavez Ravine is a wonderful stadium, but has a world of problems and errors.

"This is the worst place to get into by car that I've ever seen," moaned a 30-year baseball-writing veteran, "Once you get into the park everything is confusion. People are going around in circles looking for their seats. Can't anything be done?"

I've asked the same question a half-dozen times , and got nothing but icy stares or biting letters. But it's nice to have other people agree with me. Misery truly loves company,

EVEN MM SHOWS UP TO SEE M&M SHOW

'Out' in Elevator

By ROSS NEWHAN Baseball's smash hit,

"Damn Yankees," is currently on stage at Chavez Ravine. The characters are the same, but there have have been some new . As Friday night's record crowd was arriving, a fashionable gentleman attempted to board a crowded elevator shortly before game time. "Sorry sir, we're too full," said the operator. "But I must get to my seat before the first pitch," pleaded our "Listen sir," replied the operator, "you're no different than anyone else. Please wait your turn."

The man waited. His name was Del Webb, coowner of the New York Yankees and owner of the construction company which narrowly missed huilding Chavez Ravine. "You can bet we'd have built more than two elevators," he mumbled.

... "You know where I can get a new set of ears," said Angel publicist Irv Kaze Friday afternoon. "My phone hasn't stopped ringing once, I never realized I had so many friends and relatives."

At 7:50 p.m., 10 minutes prior to the start of Saturday evening's game, the phone in manager Bill Rigney's clubhouse office rang. "Hello," said the skipper. "Gordon Windhorn? Just one moment." Windhorn was recalled from the dugout, picked up the receiver, and carried on a 60 second conversation,

"Can you imagine that?" asked the new Angel, "I met this guy once and he wants tickets for tonight's game. Man, things were never like this in Kansas City."

... A host of stars have been attracted to the series, including Marilyn Monroe, on hand to make a pitch for the multiple sclerosis fund. "You'll make the speech from home plate," an Angel executive whispered to her upon her arrival at the park, "Oh, wonderful," she hissed. "Where's that?" "You going to bet on yourself tonight?" a writer kidded Bo Belinsky as the Angels' conversation piece relaxed before opening the series. "Can you imagine baseball's bible printing that," replied Bo, referring to a Sporting News editorial which quoted him as saying he had bet on himself in the minors. "We've asked for a retraction and the source of the quote," said Bo. "If not, we may sue." ... "I bet this infield is lightning fast," said Yankee pitcher Ralph Terry. When informed it was, the American League's candidate for Mr. Nice Guy replied: "If I remember right, the air at night here is pretty heavy. If I can keep the ball off the ground I should be all right." In nine innings against Terry, the Angels hit only seven ground balls, collected only four hits and lost.

. . . And in the trainer's room of the Yankee clubhouse, Gus Soares began the tedious task of taping those powerful legs. The ordeal lasts 20 minutes and takes place 162 times during the season. The patient is poker faced, occasionally breaking into a faint smile to hide a moment of pain,

Now, fully uniformed, the No. 7 centered on the broad back, he appears to the world like the sleekest, most powerful automobile ready for a test run. Few know how long the wheels will last.

Mickey Mantle hits a batting practice pitch 380 feet into the leftfield bleachers. He grimaces in pain. It's not all right.

One of the many songs Gordon MacRae sings magnificently is "You'll Never Walk Alone" from his lead role in "Carousel." And MacRae, one of the most popular men in show business and one of its finest golfers, need not worry about walking alone when he plays in the World Entertainment Golf Championship at Recreation Park Saturday and Sunday.
The gallery should be humming.

A five-handicapper from the country club of the stars, Lakeside in North Hollywood, MacRae had a royal chance to win the tournament last year only to finish second

What happened, Gordon?

"It was a funny story to start with. I never expected to play in the tournament. My wedding anniversary was that Sunday, and you know how women are. That's one day they want you at home. But Maurie Luxford (tournament chairman) urged me to play and win the tournament as a present for Sheila, my wife.

"I shot one under par 71 the first round, but still didn't think I had a chance. Coming into the final three holes. I heard a loudspeaker report, If Gordon MacRae can par the last three holes, he is the champion.' What did I do then? I bogied two of the three holes and finished one

Are you going to make amends and win this year?

'I'm certainly going to try, For one thing, I don't have a wedding present to worry about. I've never played at Recreation Park, but I have heard nice things about it. I'm sure every one will enjoy the tournament there."

Who do you consider as top contenders?
"Forrest Tucker is a great golfer, and he is going to play. There are Bob Sterling, Bob Wilke and Jim Garner, all top golfers. And there are other fellows like the directors and cameramen who can play very well. There will be plenty of competition."

Have you played golf for a long time? Twenty-nine years. I've had four holesin-one, and my best round was a 65 at

Outdoor Coverage to be Expanded

This is the kickoff week for an expansion of FISHIN' AROUND. You'll be seeing more of the column in the weeks and months to come. You'll also be reading more articles about fishing, boating camping and all the other participating sports that go to make up what we refer to as the outdoors.

The publishers of these newspapers, as well as other papers recently added to the Ridder chain in Or-County realize that those subjects which make up the outdoors are vital to the constantly increasing population of this area, as well as that of the entire west.

As many of my longtime friends know, I have divided my interests between outdoor coverage and The Press - Telegram news desk, where news sometimes flows faster than water going over a dam. Now after 32 years on that desk - 38 on The Press-Telegram, all of which were spent on various desks-I am divorcing myself from such duties in order to spend all my working week on outdoor coverage. And when I say "di-vorce," I mean just that; a lot of sentiment went into those last few hours. My DONNELL CULPEPPER fellow employes had a streamer across the news room. It read: "DON'S GONE-FISHING DAY!

DONNELL CULPEPPER

Around the room and in the halls were smaller signs: "DON TO THE SEA IN SHIPS."

THE DAY WAS PERFECT for my finale. Scott Carpenter was orbiting the earth and it was my duty to get every last fragment of news into each edition as the deadlines hurried at me. And when I say that, I mean deadlines have been rushing at me for 41 years in this business, I was a punk kid when I got into a sea of printer's ink and I never could get out.

In leaving the news desk, I must mention some faithful friends and coworkers. They never have their bylines in the paper; most of you readers don't know them, but they do a job that brings you a superior prod-uct and makes you a better-informed person about local, state, national and world affairs.

There's Jack Ellwanger, a most careful editor, who will be taking my desk full time instead of just three days a week. And Lew Allison, the surf-fishing addict, who will take over for Ellwanger. Then there are such superb copy editors as Howard Diehl, Bob Martin, Morey Rabin, Arthur (Pete) Davis, Forest Jordan, Bill Shelton and Nat Honig, a recent addition from the defunct Los Angeles Examiner, who swings from job to job with the

They are the men who edit the copy that goes into your newspaper. Without them you'd see some weird spelling and mixed-up phraseology.

NOW A WORD AS TO WHAT you may expect from me in the future. Freed from the eight-hour shifts on the news desk, I'll be flashing in and out of The I,P-T building at some odd times, writing mostly in my den at home, 2173 Magnolia, where my outdoor friends may feel free to call with what information they have to offer.

FISHIN' AROUND will appear at it susual length on Thursdays and Saturdays in both The Independent and The Press-Telegram. In addition, there will be shorter columns on Wednesdays and Fridays, plus an enlarged coverage of the daily FISHIN' FACTS.

There will be more news of boating and Dave Taylor, a young drag-racing enthusiast at Long Beach State College, will have a big hand in that coverage.

Andy Anderson, who does a weekly column every Tuesday in The Independent, will continue that for both papers. His will be a thorough roundup of weekend ocean fishing. Andy has been writing for The Independent for many years and has a large following among the ocean fishermen.

My own coverage will be devoted to the entire area and FISHIN' AROUND will appear, starting today, in The Newport Harbor News-Press, It will appear at a date not yet determined in The Garden Grove News. The coverage will range over all subjects—not just fishing that make up the outdoors.

tendon, put Giant pitcher Juan Marichal out of action for six weeks last season. He also came within a fraction of an inch of having his playing days ended,

Yogi agrees that the stories helped make him a much bigger personality than if the writers had ignored him. 'There's no question but what they have served a useful

I mean, everything in the majors is blg. They really pressure you. They write about everything you do and you don't; the crowd and the crowds never miss a thing. The average kid of 20 just can't handle it.

For awhile, the Orioles were going to ask American League president Joe Cronin to make a full scale investigation into the practice of "doctoring the hall."

After thinking it over, though, Hitchcock has decided not to press the charge, "It's a closed incident. We plan no protest, official or unofficial. This is a serious matter, but we feel it is up to the umpires to handle such things. I'm a manager not a policeman, "However, I still think Bunning cut the baseballs!"

After the game, Ilitchcock displayed 11 balls he insisted had been in the game at one time or another. He had collected them gradually when they were fouled off. All 11 balls bore a slit about two inches long!

After playing two doublecaders in three days, Alston's pitching staff was such that he figured, "one of these days, we may just have to take a heating." Saturday was the day.

DODGERS -- WIRE-TO-WIRE (Continued From Page D-1) WIN 5,600TH or homered with one aboard. FOR LONGDEN

Jockey Johnny Longden, the all-time riding cham-pion of the turf, added another milestone to his racing career Saturday at Hollywood Park when he scored his 5,600th victory in the fourth race with Hostara.

Track announcer Harry Henson informed the big Saturday crowd that the victory was Longden's 5,600th and he was given a loud cheer and round of

NFL BROWNS OFFER PACT TO HAVLICEK

CLEVELAND, Ohio - The Cleveland Browns Saturday offered Ohlo State basketball star John Havlicek a football contract after watching him work out.

Coach Paul Brown said Havlicek would make a good receiver in the pro ranks, but would have to work hard to make it as a T-quarterback.

"He has tremendous hands and would make an exceptional flanker," Brown said after watching Hav-Jicek work out near the home of assistant coach Fritz, Heisler.

Details of the contract were not announced.

Major League Who's Frightened of Big Wilt? Not ABL Saints, Cries O'Shea

General manager Kevin O'Shea, a winning coach for the San Francisco Saints last season when he ran the club on a stop-gap basis, thinks that they will survive the invasion of the ex-Philadelphia Warriors.

"We're aware that such competition will be tough to beat," the lantern-jawed Notre Dame cage great said Saturday in his office. "The Warriors have a lot of advantages, such as a drawing card in Wilt Chamberlin. But we have a couple of trump cards ourselves."

O'Shea listed these as the Saints' exclusive rights to use the San Francisco Cow Palace for their home games this season with an option on the following campaign plus the fact they were entrenched here a year before the Warriors.

HE ALSO feels that the American Basketball League's brand of ball is more entertaining than that of the National Basketball Association which features the Warriors.

Then there's the item of a three-million dollar antitrust suit which the Saints have announced they will file against the NBA, but O'Shea prefers to let the lawyers talk about that side of the squabble.

The Warriors, after nu-asked just what the chances were of obtaining the Warriors' biggest attraction.

One theory kicking around is that Abe Saperstein, the ABL's prexy, might induce Walt to join the Saints. Abe was a part-owner of the Warriors when Chamberlin was signed by them from his Globetrotters. One thing is certain, however. The Saints definitely failed to land their first four draft choices and O'Shea isn't too happy

"We dilly-dallied around too much instead of going right after those kids," he said. "Maybe we were paying too much attention to the NBA invasion."

O'Shea, who formerly played for the Minneapolis Lakers and Baltimore Bullets, posted an 8-5 record ing the Saints after Phil Woolpert suddenly was fired,

Such a mark, combined on a season long basis, might help the Saints in their battle of survival with the Warriors.

With mass production, the station wagon began to gain acceptance among middle in come families. But it was no until introduction of the all metal body that station wagon sales began to skyrocket. As an example, in 1952, when Ford introduced its all-metal body, industry station wagon sales were only 3.4 per cent of the car market. By 1959, station wagon registrations soared to better than 14 per cent, or 722,877 more than the 139,404 sold in 1952.

Year after year . . , from east, north and south , . families and individuals have been pouring into California, with Long Beach sharing bountifully in this population explosion.

Some have remained essentially strangers in their adopted home town, living merely on the fringes of com-munity enjoyment. They're the non-joiners and the nonvolunteers. Unless they change they never will feel the pulse beat of the city.

Others, like the Community Chest volunteers we salute today, have come from all over the country and gained 'favorite cîtizen" status almost immediately. They did it by sharing in the responsibility of helping Long Beach grow with just as much enthusiasm as if they'd been born here. LET'S TAKE a cross section of the volunteers. Fred Edwards came here for health reasons, bringing with him his wife and sons of Vancouver, B. C. Fred got busy right away. During his 43-year residency his work with Boy Scouts has earned him the distinction of being the senior scoutmaster, still active, in the area.

His scrapbook is filled with pictures of hundreds of boys he has helped into manhood. His scout uniform is adorned with every medal that can be conferred on a volunteer who has spent all his leisure hours in order that boys in this community can "grow up the right way."

With Lydia Towner's love of music and keen interest in children, to become active in a variety of organizations followed as naturally as breathing. Volunteer work wasn't new to her. She had served during the war as a Red Cross aide in Seattle, was director of music at a detention nome and worked with many teen club groups. Now she is teader here for Camp Fire Girls, training chairman for the program in the area; is active in two P-T.A. units.

Since they have two sons playing with the Long Beach Concert Band, the Turners also work hard to help raise money for the band. All this, for Lydia, in addition to being housewife and mother of a new baby.

ARGUMENTS pro and con on the correct retirement age may fly thick and fast but as far as Mrs. Mabel Goldthwaite is concerned, one never grows too old to be of service. After 42 years as an officer of the Salvation Army it would be reasonable to think she would be ready for relaxation. Not so.

When she and her husband, Brigadier Harland Goldthwaite, retired it scarcely caused a ripple of change in their accustomed life of service,

WHEN W. C. Towner was transferred here from Washington by his firm five years ago he brought his wife, Lydia, and three children with him.

She heads the local Army's League of Mercy, With 31 other volunteers they make regular hospital visits. Last year these totaled 18,315 calls! His interests and time are taken up with work at the Rehabilitation Center . . . and work offers anyone an it right there with him a lot of time is his wife, adding this roots" in any community. to her other duties which include directing the Southern California Veteran's Choir.

> AT THE TIME Mr. and Mrs. Herman Moskowitz moved here from New York City they fully intended to spend all their retirement years playing golf and fishing.

> Instead, as volunteers for a senior citizens group at Jewish Community Center, they are spending five days a week making others feel useful and appreciated. So occupied have they become in community activities they have never once experienced the feeling of aloneness in a new Texas-born Mary Todd, after graduation from University of Texas, went to the University of Iowa for her master's degree and there met husband, Robert. One cold winter night they decided that California's weather was more appealing . . . and for the past four years Long Beach has filled the bill, climate-wise and city-wise. Teaching school has not kept Mary from being a Girl Scout troop leader for two years and with daughters, 3, 6 and 9 years old she expects many more years of troop work.

ALTHOUGH originally from Missouri, Virginia Emig and her husband, Irving, lived in many parts of the coun-try before coming here. Virginia believes that volunteer work offers anyone an ideal opportunity to "put down

By now her roots go very deep indeed. Virginia is a good listener. Because she is, the dreams, hopes and sorrows of countless servicemen are poured into her understanding ears each week at the Armed Services YMCA As one of the senior hostesses there, Mrs. Emig not only checks in the junior hostesses who come to join the fellows in "sings" around the plane, the dinners and parties, but can qualify as a real foster mother to the boys.

With her own elder son in the Navy, she has a very personal reason for wanting to see that lonesome boys far from home have a place where they can find worthwhile friendship and wholesome entertainment.

These people and thousands like them are the heart of a city and a nation. Without the enthusiasm and devotion of 16,105 volunteers engaged in assisting Community Chest agencies in their varied work in this area; little headway could be made in improving the lives of those who live

Regardless of the personal enjoyment each may realize from his or her voluntary work, the fact remains these are the ones who are doing most to brighten the mirror which reflects Long Beach.

Shirley Jones . . . lady stock broker

Former Airline Hostess Still Has Ups and Downs

Any way you figure, you can take stock in what Shirley Louise Jones

You can even bank on it.

Once was when she spent her at-work days writing two-plus-twos on a blackboard. Now her calculations have gone into higher mathematics. Today the sign on her desk reads: .

Shirley Jones, stock broker.

Last week, in the hectic turmoil of the nation's worst market crash since '29, this one-time airline hostess, former elementary school teacher, strict-Iv feminine female was calm as Scott Carpenter making his re-entry into

"But," says she, "it was an extremely exciting experience."

Although professionally involved in the market only two years, she's been interested in finance most of her adult years. She labels herself "ultra conservative-I don't gamble on the market." Rather, she takes "about the same risks a bank would." Her motto: "I believe in the continuing growth of America, buy stocks of good basic value, then calmly wait out the turbulence."

ATTRACTIVE Shirley Jones started investing about 1950 "when everybody got the fever."

But before buying stock, she researched basic finance, looked for good quality issues at fair prices ("the reason some people are getting hurt now is that they overpaid in the first place") and investigated companies involved.

"A good motto," says she, "is investigate—then invest."

Noting there are more women stockholders than men, she says "any woman who does a good job of managing the family budget is on the road to being a good investor."

As to whether women have a special knack with money, she says: "Well, I like to think so, but some men would disagree."

ONE OF FEW women in the world of changing prices and ticker tapes, she considers stock market brokerage a fine field for women.'

"You work for yourself . . . you meet all kinds of interesting people you are in a position to help yourself . . . and you keep your linger on the pulse of the nation's economy."

As account executive at Walston & Co., located on Locust Avenue ("the Wall Street of Long Beach"), she says one of her principal responsibilities to clients is "not let them become unduly alarmed when the market is going down or over-zealous when it's on the

What about her own holdings? "Just out of curiosity, I'm hanging on to them. They've been good investments so far . . . some have doubled, some tripled. Of course, they've had their ups and downs, but there's always a check (every three months) coming in to make life interesting,

"Besides, you sort of become attached to your stocks and bonds---like an old friend. You feel like they're your personal slice of America."

SHE BELIEVES securities are a better investment for women than real estate, "You don't always have to be fixing the hot water heater or a leaky

The show begins in the patio where a welded metal form floats gently in the breeze on a fulcrum set in cluster of fieldstones. The sculptor, Robert Moore, was doubtlessly inspired by the site. Inside the gallery are two more of his works, a charming stone torso and a skeletal ancient soldier in helmet, shield and lance.

Another metal sculpture, this a large baroque free form, was made and installed by Angelo Calderone in the framing of the gallery portico. Both suggest the infinite possibilities architectural sculpture can offer stark contemporary buildings.

"When we arrived the planist answered the doorbell. He greeted us warmly and kissed my wife's hand. Despite his 31 years in America, Horowitz clings to his Old World manners, such as kissing ladies hands."

Americana Sheet Music at Library

"Washing Day: A Proper New Ballad for Wet Weather" is a humorous song of the 1830s which describes the tribulations of a housewife when all went wrong on wash-day and her family suffered the "stormy weath-er" of her wrath. It's all in fun and part of a fascinating collection of early American songs: military, humorous, romantic, in the Harry Dichter "One Hundred Songs of Musical Americana" sheet music, now a part of the music collection of the Long Beach Public Library,

MORE THAN eleven hunred unbound pieces of sheet music are in the collection and the hit parade of old timers goes back to the days when our country was in infancy. The story of the Boston Tea Party is told in song. "Brother Soldiers All Hail," 1799, is in praise of George Washington. There are patriotic hits on great battles such as "Hull's Victory" and modern composer Jimmy Driftwood looks back at the "Battle of New Orleans."

THE DICHTER sheet music pieces are facsimiles of the original sheets, and are charmingly and quaintly illustrated. Simon Legree pursues Eliza over the ice in "Eliza's Flight." The English poke fun at the 49ers in their search for gold in "California, or the Feast of Gold," a satire, Long Beach residents might especially like "Have You Struck Oil?" -all about oil prospecting. For the horseless carriage enthusiasts there is "Git A Horsel" vintage 1902, telling the perils of auto break-

OTHER ITEMS in the collection include the first All-American hit song, "Min-strel's Return From the War," by John Hill Hewitt, 1827; "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too," and the "Rapid Transit Gallop," 1875. Great inventions such as the "Wondrous Telephone," graph" and even the typewriter, are celebrated with

But, ladies, don't be over-hasty in ruling out pants (not that we thought you would, anyway).

For many occasions they can be fitting—and proper.

Rear views such as those mentioned above, as well as spoiling the fashion landscape, may also have spoiled your ideas of how sleek, appropriate and attractive women in pants CAN look.

FIRST THING to watch (especially through a rear-view mirror) is size. Shop carefully, Pants, all lengths, can he found in Long Beach stores proportioned for shape as well as size-be your figure junior or misses, petite or tall, slim or full.

Sizing starts with a snug waist, a graceful curve over the hip and the proper length (for long pants, just covering the ankle bone). As one de-signer cautioned: Be sure they're not so tight at the calf that your legs look like drumsticks, or so snug in the hips that you resemble a balloon topped by a shirt."

Latest newcomer to the pants scene, of course, is stretch pants, originally designed in heavy fabrics for wear on ski slopes.

Women who wore them for skiing liked them so much, they've been copied in lighter fabrics. And most women wear them fitted snuggly,

This also solves the waist problem for many women, she notes.

All of our pants have coordinated shirts and sweaters for a put-together look," this designer says. "And, for the ultra in casual smartness, we wish they were always worn that way."

THEN THERE'S the social matter of where pants go. .

Most designers agree they stay at home, work in the garden, go out in public . . . sometimes.

When they DO go out (to the market, to walk the dog, to a beach, a resort, a sports event), they should fit you, loosely enough, and the occasion, clearly enough.

All versions, they caution, should stay out of city streets, department stores, trains, planes or someone else's "at home."

When it comes to jewelry, keep in mind that any pants costume . even in paled silk—comes under the heading, "informal." So apply dress-up touches with a light hand.

EXAMINATION of the invitations reveals that young dancers attending the par-ties starting in September may anticipate a studded with such intriguing affairs as the "Oriental "Patriotic Pa-Fantasy," or "Safari Shuffle."

While the majority of the parties are dressy or sports attire events, clubs enrolling eighth grade students have planned a special shipwreck party while ninth graders look forward to a "What's My Line?" costume party and the sock and sweatshirt hop.

Tenth grade Ten Teens will have a hobo party and a "Madnatter's Ball." High school juniors and seniors in Promenaders may plan for the annual island luan and the "Roaring Twenties,"

FOUNDED in Long Beach in 1938 by a small group of prominent women, the clubs have grown into an organization of 83 units with more in the process of being formed. Each group is limited to a memoership of 120 dancers, and range from the fourth grade through high school.

Fourth graders are taught folk and rhythm dancing. Fifth graders learn square dancing. Ballroom instruction starts at the sixth grade and advances according to grade level. All members receive social etiquette instruc-

Advanced dancers in the clubs have won national and international championships; performed on stage, screen and television; entertained hospital patients; and have contributed many hours appearing at charity and community events.
The clubs, organized and maintained by parents of members, are under the direct guidance of a board of five executive officers and nine or more patronesses. Each club has its own treasury with officers directing expenditures and extending invitations.

Among the 64 Long Beach chairmen heading executive boards are Mmes. William H. Todd, Robert E. Baker, Don C. Eaton, George Green Jr., Clinton H. Fowler, Willis Boyd, Robert Godwin, Norslaw, hot buttered French man Scott, Edwin Lien, Eugene Lamb.

EXPRESSION OF HORROR changed to one of joyous relief for Mrs. William G. Pickens of Freshmen Jubilaires when she learned that she and Mrs. John Pithlado, Junior Cotillion, did NOT have to address all those invitations to dance club members for the fall season at Fine Art's Center, Each of the 83 clubs headquartered there will mail own bids to the new party season starting in September, More than 11,000 youngsters throughout area take part in the program.

Heartache Just Beginning

DEAR ABBY: I am heartsick. Our 17-year-old son got a 17-year-old girl in trouble. We know her parents well. This girl has been boy-crazy since she was 14 and has given her parents lots of heartaches. Since this girl claims our son is responsible for her condition, our son proposed marriage, but she turned him down. Then her father called my husband and suggested they get together and talk things over, My husband met with him and agreed there should be a wedding. Our son asked her twice again and was refused. Her father said okay, no wedding, but we must pay the hospital bill, which we

In the meantime, the girl said she was marrying an old sweetheart of hers. Well, that marriage never took place and now, all of a sudden, in her eighth month, she is begging our son to marry her to save her from disgrace. He wants to but his father won't let him. I say let them marry, even if it ends in divorce. Please, Abby, what should be done about this mess?

MOTHER IN THE MIDDLE.

DEAR MOTHER: The purpose of a marriage Is not to "save people from disgrace." It is a serious lifetime contract. These 17-year-olds appear ill-prepared for such responsibilities. Unless a clergyman can give them a crash course in what is expected of the holy sacrament of marriage, which I doubt, I would not push too hard for a wedding. Furthermore, your boy offered to do "the right thing" when it made

DEAR ABBY: There is a lady who lives in our neighborhood who is a real problem. She doesn't know how to drive and she can't park a car. Either her back end is sticking out in the street or else her front wheels are up on the curb. She has even parked on the sidewalk, and I'm not kidding. I swear don't know how she got a driver's license. When people see hr driving down the street, they pull over and give her the whole road. Shouldn't someone tell her to learn how to drive or to stop driving? I think she is a menace.—CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: I'm surprised the local police haven't offered to give her a few lessons. Tip her off in the name of friendship and public safety,

DEAR ABBY: What on earth is wrong with a person who either has to monopolize the entire conversation or else stays completely out of it? She also breaks into the conversation when others are talking and changes the subject to suit herself.—F. S.

DEAR F. S.: The behavior you describe is typical of a person with defective hearing. Unless she does all the talking, she feels "out of it" because she can't hear what's going on. Encourage your friend to have her hearing tested.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TOO YOUNG TO WED AND IN TROUBLE": Tell your parents the truth IM-MEDIATELY. I promise you they will help you.

How's the world treating you? For a personal unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

decorative. It is perfect for a gift and will last indefinitely.

Boards in the accompanying photographs are made of one-inch bass wood. Designs were cut with a band-saw, edges smoothed with a rasp and sandpaper. Then, surfaces were thoroughly sanded, The simulated scroll hangs by a cord, the others by concealed picture wire.

IF YOUR hobby is painting, why not make a board the shape of an artist's palette? Perhaps your name suggests a design. Or, why not use the silhouette of your pet dog or cat? Or, your house, if the outline is distinctive? Or, if making a gift, your friend's pet or house? Be sure to hurn the date and your name on the back. With your gift, you might include an electric burning needle. (Usually sold in art supply stores and toy departments.)

First, draw your design on paper. (You don't have to be an artist.) If the design is symmetrical, draw one-half of it on a folded piece of paper. Cut out, place on the board and trace outline of pattern.

Suppose your club wishes to pay tribute to an out-going president. So, you made a board, say in the shape of a parchment scroll, shield or the club's insignia. (These designs are also appropriate for larger boards.) Write the tribute on the board, have it signed by the club's board members and burned in before it is pre-(Continued on Page 14)

After several months, the baffling disappearance of two local men seems to have been solved. Word has finally been received that Tom Denman and Bob Mansfield, local furniture men, have opened their own contemporary home furnishings store in Cosla

Upon cross examination, the two men apologized for having left the local area in such a hurry, without letting their many friends and customers know where they had gone. Opportunity had presented itself and they had to move fast.

They have combined their 30 years of experience in the furniture industry to offer what they feel is the finest and most interesting collection of contemporary furniture available in the Southland, at prices that are substantially 15 to 25 percent less than the going market.

Realizing that they have been depriving the local folks of these values, they wish to take this opportunity to invite all to make the short twenty minute drive to Costa Mesa and see them at their new location. They promise you'll find a delight in the unusual.

You Ask, We Answer

O. How hat is lave? L.G.

A. The temperature of the lava as it issues from a volcano varies somewhat, but may be around 2000° F. The t e m peratures of the lavas of Kila úea, Ha-waii, have been 2165 to 2190° F; of Paricuton, Mexico, 2010° F.; and of Ny-amlagira, Africa, 2120° F.

Q. Do most states have "blue laws" about working or selling on Sunday? N.S.

A. Every state except Nevada has some kind of law applying to activities on Sunday, Many of these laws refer only to working. About half the states have laws applying specifically to retailing on Sunday.

Q. Why do we say that a person is "struck" by an idea but "stricken" by fear? D.B.

A. While both "struck and "stricken" are past participles of the verb "strike," usage favors "stricken" when misfortune or disability is implied, Used as an adjective, "stricken" has such meanings as wounded, disabled, or worn out. In this sense, we speak of a stricken deer or a stricken ship.

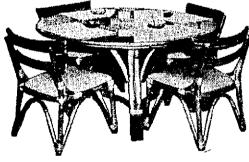

Q. What is the record size for hailstones? Has the speed of hail ever been measured?

A. In the U. S., the largest hailstone definitely recorded is the 1½-pound stone that fell at Potter, Neb., on July 6, 1928. It measured 17 inches around. A 2½-pound stone fell at Horsham, Sussex, England, on May 8, 1958. A 4.4pound hailstone was reported to have fallen in September 1959 at Jambul, Kazakhstan, USSR. During an extremely violent fall of hail at Pretorie, South Africa, in 1949 it was found that 4-ounce stones, about 3 inches in diameter, were hitting roofs at speeds close to 90 miles an hour.

Darlene: A Hard Girl to Beat

Sounds OK, huh? Beats punching a time clock or putting in the daily 8-to-5 routine at the office.

DARLENE HARD of Long Beach, national women's champion, agrees—and she wouldn't have missed it for anything. But after nearly a decade as one of the world's best—and most colorful—performers, the exuberant 26-year-old blonde says she is nearing the end of the tennis trail.

"This will be my last year of international competition," she says.

Darlene is in Europe now for Wightman Cup matches and tournaments leading up to Wimbledon in England, where, on June 25, she will begin her sixth quest for the clusive singles crown in the world's No. 1 tournament.

She'll also be out to extend her remarkable doubles record.

IN HER LAST three appearances at Wimbledon—in 1957, 1959 and 1960—the Long Beach miss has shared in all six doubles championships! She has won the women's with Althea Gibson, Jeanne Arth and Maria Bueno, and the mixed with Meryyn Rose and Rod Laver (twice).

It is not surprising that Darlene has gained so much success in doubles. She admits it is her strong point.

"Singles and doubles are two different games. I much prefer playing doubles and am better at it," she says.

"Doubles is a game of angles and finesse and

"You react more naturally in doubles, and," she adds, "I prefer NOT to have time to think!"

SOME OF THE best singles players of all time have been only so so at doubles.

Many of the leading women's singles players do not feel at home at the net. They are primarily baseline performers. But to excel in doubles it is imperative to play well at the net, where the ball is hit before it bounces.

Among women players, Darlene is unsur-

Among women players. Darlene is unsur-passed at the net. She hits magnificent overheads and is a brilliant volteyer.

Even in singles she plays a "man's game," al-ways eager to rush forward where she can put the ball away with one crisp voltey or one devas-tating smash. She has keen anticipation, is fast afoot and is excellent at cutting off would be year afoot and is excellent at cutting off would-be passing shots with quick lunges to one side or the other.

Also, in doubles, she can make better use of her outstanding backhand, which is superior to her forchand.

ALL IN ALL, Miss Hard has earned the reputation as the best woman doubles player in the world today—some say the best ever. In addition to her six Wimbledon champion-ships, she has four American and five French doubles titles to her credit, not to mention countless other championships in lesser tournaments throughout the world,

Even though she has won the national singles championship the last two years and has been a finalist in singles at Wimbledon twice, Darlene has less confidence at singles.

Tve never entered a singles tournament feeling I had a chance to win it," she insists.
Of her winning the French Championships on the clay courts of Roland Garros Stadium in Paris in 1960, Darlene says: "I was numb throughout the meet—I didn't know what was going on!" (Clay is the surface she likes least; her favorite is grass.)

THE IRREPRESSIBLE Miss Hard has won the U. S. women's doubles championship the last four years with three different partners—Miss Arth (twice), Senhorita Bueno of Brazil and Lesley Tur-

That year they won three of the world's "Big Four" tournaments—the French Championships in addition to the Nationals and Wimbledon—and no doubt would have taken the Australian title, too, had they competed there.

"We can be spectacular when we're both 'on'," Darlene admits,

She feels, however, that Maria's game fluctuates more in doubles than singles, whereas her own game varies more in singles.

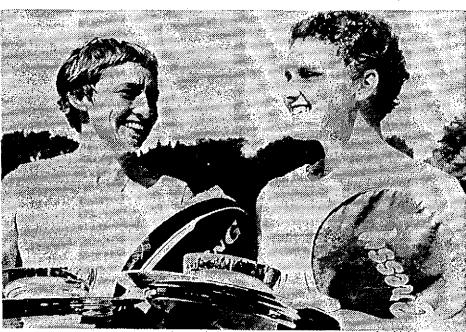

In May 1961, while competing in the French Championships, both Darlene and Maria were stricken by infectious hepatitis and had to default in the doubles final and then pass up defense of their Wimbledon championship. They were reunited on the Florida-Caribbean circuit several months ago.

FOR THE LAST three years Miss Hard has called Long Beach "home." When she is not oil to such places as Barranquilla, Montego Bay, Naples, Vienna, Barcelona, Mexico City, Buenos Aires or Melbourne, she resides with her friends Mr. and Mrs. Sidney E. Johnston, of 2420 Daisy Ave.

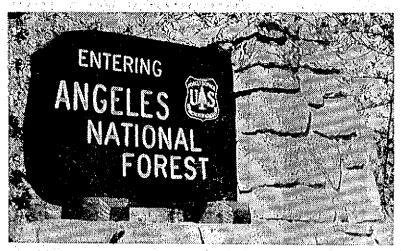

Darlene is a native Californian and grew up in Inglewood and Montebello, Her mother, Mrs. Ruth Hard, is an avid tennis player and taught the game to her daughter. Darlene was given a racket at 4 and entered her first tournament at 13-the Girls' 13 event in the Southern California Juniors (she won it). At 18 she was runner-up to Barbara Breit in (Continued on Page 26)

Back-Yard Wilderness

By Willis Blenkinsop

Ising in ever-changing majesty just beyond our back door, the San Gabriel Mountains have long been a haven for Southern California's climate-inspired outdoor enthusiasts, but oddly enough the first American to visit them had little choice in the matter.

Joseph Chapman, a husky Yankee privateer, first saw this region of Joseph Chapman, a husky Yankee privateer, first saw this region of craggy peaks and timber-covered upper elevations as a prisoner of ranch owner Antonio Maria Lugo. Shackled to the job of cutting timber for Los Angeles' Plaza church in 1818, he proved to be such a whiz with a saw that eventually he married the daughter of one of his former victims and became the first American to settle in the sleepy pueblo. In the swath he cut, a cavalcade of loggers, cattle rustlers, homesteaders, bandits, miners and resort owners roamed and settled the San Gabriel back country.

SIXTY-SEVEN years later in 1885 Perry Switzer foresaw the recreational possibilities of the area. Bobcats and grizzly bears were his first and sometimes his only guests at the resort he built in the wilderness north of Pasadena, but as tourists began to converge on Southern California, hundreds of them felt well rewarded for their long, dusty trip up the oak and sycamore-lined canyon of the Arroyo Seco. Today in less than two hours via the Arroyo Seco Freeway and the Angeles Crest Highway, more than six million people can reach the site of Switzer's Shangri-La and much of the adjacent country; a recreational area unique among our nation's 155 national forests.

With its 691,000 acres sprawled across the back yard of the nation's third largest city, Angeles National Forest has hosted more visitors than any other in the country—2½ million in 1950; more than 3½ million in 1961. With 3½ million people annually pounding through this oldest of California's national forests it's remarkable that the scenery isn't worn out. Foresighted management forestalled such a tragedy and preserved its original charm. Geologically the region is a teen-ager. It is the most intensively faulted and fractured mountain mass in North America.

Since 1892 when the region became the San Gabriel Timberland Reserve it has been supervised and developed by a corps of U. S. Forest Service rangers, the first in the United States, and as rugged as their ploneer predecessors. On their salaries of $50 a month they built the nation's first ranger station, paid all their own expenses including horse maintenance, hacked out trails into the remote interior and, even then, wrestled with paper work—an ominous harbinger of the shape of things to come. In 1908 the odious connotation of "Reserve" was removed and the area was renamed the Angeles National Forest.

NATIONAL FORESTS as distinguished from other forest reservations are administered today under a multiple-use principle. By no means the least of these is the preservation of natural beauty and attractiveness for recreation.

In the Angeles, one-third of the total population of 11 Western states can find quick and easy communion with nature on 360 miles of paved roads within the forest. Those who seek a closer look afoot or on horse-back will find it along 433 miles of trails that lace this mountain and desert playground.

Two thousand camping and picnic units and seven major ski areas provide year-round recreation. Fifty-two organization camps give school children and youth services a chance to meet nature and to share some of her secrets. Here city-reared youngsters may learn that life's values can be measured by something besides two carburetors and an overdrive. Here they may fall asleep under the stars that somehow seem brighter and closer, breathe the sweet scent of pine needles and hear the chatter of a mountain brook.

IN THE LATE 1890s the San Gabriel River and its tributaries were among California's most productive trout streams. To uphold this tradition and to meet the impact of hundreds of modern Isaac Waltons, more than 114,000 trout were planted during 1961 in 184 miles of fishable streams and five mountain lakes.

But if statistics on campsites and surfaced roads suggest a forest teeming with more humans than wild life; if put and-take fishing seems to justify the standard opening-day quip, (Continued on Page 16)

—U. S. Forest Service Pi Charlion Flats is a picnic area high in the Angeles National Forest and here families seeking change from city wear and tear may find pleasure as these folk are doing, turning back time to a more peaceful period.

Oldest tools known to man help launch new missiles

Stone Age Speeds Space Age 'Go'

By Frank Cates

THE STONE AGE is making its contribution to the Space Age as engineers travel many avenues to solve numerous booster, flight and guidance riddles.

At Autonetics division of North American Aviation Inc. a surprising variety of tools, including the common stone, are being used to prepare parts exacting enough to guide rocketing vehicles on their narrow paths to target.

A group in the precision-oriented Inertial Navigation machine shop at Autonetics' Compton facility is assigned the task of removing from guidance system parts metal shavings so small they often cannot be seen by the naked eye.

Since the parts go into systems which guide some of the nation's major defense vehicles, playing "nose" for the Hound Dog air-to-surface missile, and "eyes" for both submerged Polaris-type submarines and silohoused Minuteman missiles, their responsibility is great.

JEWELER'S TOOLS, hypodermic needles, ink erasers and carpet tacks are among the unique collection of instruments used, putting the once rudimentary task of removing the burrs on a new level of sophistication.

Dental tools, themselves sometimes not exacting enough for today's superprecise hardware, have been refined to take over the job once performed by files and emery wheels by files and emery wheels.

From one area of the machine shop comes the page from the Stone Age. The art of grinding through use of various shaped stones is being implemented here to remove the rough edges from instrument casing exteriors and other areas.

This efficient, fast and economical method uses stones ranging in shape from cubes to triangles, by sliding, vibrating or tumbling them over the parts.

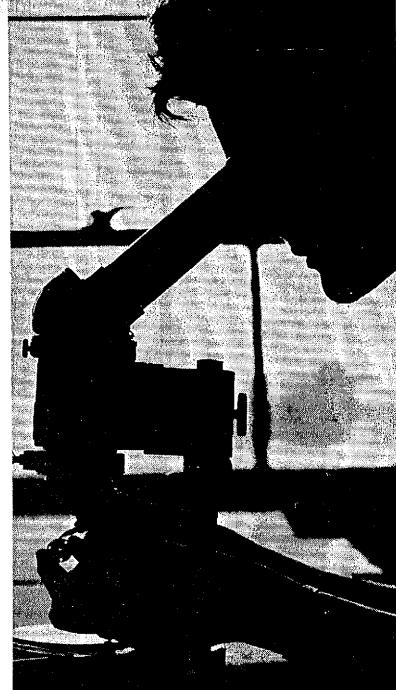

In a second area, technicians work under four-powered magnifying lenses, using jewelers' lathes, ink crasers, watchmaker tools, slick-shaped stones and other unusual tools to perform the burring.

IN A THIRD location, the precision area, technicians equipped with high-powered microscopes remove burrs unable to be seen without such sides. Burrs must be lifted from the depths of holes whose openings themselves are about half the size of an average sewing needle eye, or 40/1000th of an inch.

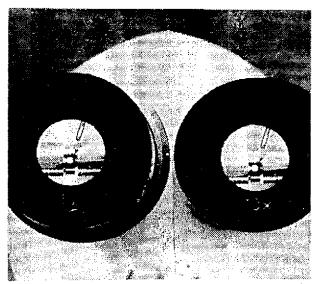

Many of the parts, more precise than those in the finest wrist watch, cannot be touched by the human hand. Sharpened dental tools and specially designed hardware holders are used in these operations, so delicate that as much time can be involved here as has gone into making the part itself.

Once burns are removed, some parts undergo a liquid honing for additional smoothing, with converted hypodermic needles used to transmit the abrasive fluid into the vein-sized holes.

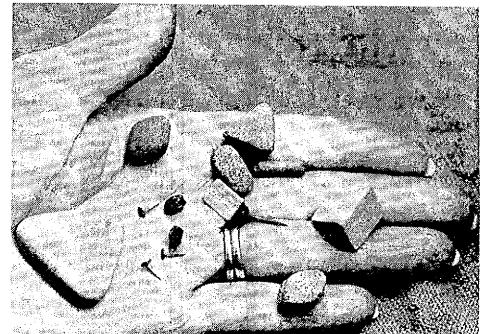

From pages of the past to the latest advancements in the medical and manufacturing fields, the nation's engineers, like those at Autonetics, are calling upon the best tools man has devised to keep defense and space vehicles in "go" condition.

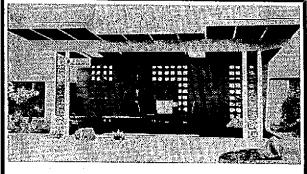

Powerful microscopes are required in modern burring of small precision inertial navigation system parts. Delicate tools also are a necessity.

Diet Item for Better Teeth

By Ben Zinser
Independent, Press-Telegram Medical-Science Writer

SWEDISH nutritionist predicts that tooth decay could be eliminated in a generation or two if the practice of eating bone meal during infancy and childhood became universal,

According to a report from the Swedish Division of Agriculture, the nutri-tionist's own children and those friends who followed this practice have remained 100 per cent free of cavities, The beneficial effects of the bone meal are said to be due to its calcium phosphate and trace mineral contentflourine, strontium, vanadium and molybdenum. All these elements are considered important for proper tooth nutrition and protection.

HOSE SNAP-ON plastic caps found on certain aspirin bottles enjoy a reputation for safety not entirely deserved, says a Canadian physician.

Dr. C. M. Kopp, pathologist at Ottawa Civic Hospital, cites this evidence:
A 3-year-old girl was taken to the hospital's emergency department after having eaten 25 children's aspirin tab-lets. Doctors washed out her stomach.

The child's mother admitted that she had permitted her daughter to play with the aspirin bottle. She explained that she had gained the impression from a TV commercial that the bottle cap could not be removed by a child.

The child, when asked how she opened the bottle, replied:

'It was casy. I used my teeth." Some safety measures fail, Dr. Kopp says in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, because of the ingenuity of children.

RUGS USED in the treatment of epilepsy appear to be able to unmask a latent form of a disease called systemic lupus erythematosus. SLE (literal translation: widespread red wolf disease) is an inflammatory disorder that affects the body's connective tissues. A skin rash usually is present. Cause: unknown. Its name suggests its relentless character. SLE's incidence is highest in women between puberty and menopause.

Researchers at Medical College of Alabama say they have observed two patients who developed SLE, apparently as a result of prolonged treatment with anticonvulsant drugs for epilepsy.

One of the victims was a 19-year-old woman, the other an 8-year-old boy, the researchers report in the AMA Journal.

The doctors theorize that the disease was already present, in latent form, and that prolonged treatment with epilepsy drugs "unmasked" the SLE con-

WALLET-SIZED X-ray film has been devised for the future reference of physicians treating patients with lung disease.

At the Air Force hospital in Lackland, Tex., patients with X-ray abnormalties are given a film of their X-ray negative when released. It measures only 21/4 x21/2 inches.

Obtaining earlier X-rays is frequently a vexing, time-consuming problem, two Lackland doctors comment in the AMA Journal. And waiting for earlier X-rays frequently delays diagnosis and treatment, they note.

The miniature X-ray film eliminates the delay.

ORE OFTEN that realized, acute inflammation of the gall bladder develops after surgery on other organs, Mayo Clinic doctors remark in Annals of Surgery.

Between 1916 and 1959 at the Mayo Clinic, 98 patients developed gall blad-der inflammation while convalescing from operations on organs other than the gall bladder, Mayo doctors disclose.

Average age of these patients was 58 years. Three males to one female developed gall bladder trouble under these conditions.

Most of the operations were on the gastrointestinal tract. Others involved the genito-urinary tract and the skeletal, cardiovascular and nervous system.

WHAT-YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: We would like genealogy on' POLLARD.-Mrs. A.P., Long Beach.

A.P.: POLLARD has been on English records for over seven centuries. This name originated as a descriptive nickname, for a "pollard" was an independent individual who cut his hair short in the days when most of his compatriots wore it shoulder compatiots were it shoulder length. An early listing shows Stephen, son of Poliard, in Kent, England, 1273. The Pollard coat of arms has a black chevron between three red seashells on a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: What data can you give on SYL-VESTER? -- Mrs. F.N., Long Beach.

F.N.: SYLVESTER goes back over 700 years in England. The Roman-Latin given name Silvester was the source, with the meaning "man from the forest." Among ancestors listed on old English parchments are Thomas Silvestre of Oxford-shire in 1273 and William Silvestre of Yorkshire in 1379. Joshua Sylvester, 1563-1618, was an important English poet. The family coat-of-arms refers to the name-meaning for it has a green tree on a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly analyze BAMBOROUGH. -N.B., Artesia.

N.B,: BAMBOROUGH was taken from this family's medieval castle called Bamburgh, locally pronounced in north England as "Bambur-ro." This fortress is located on the coast of Northumberland. The original place-name was Babba-burgh, deciphered as "father's stronghold." An-cestors include William de Bamburgh listed in 1355. The family shield has a black arrowhead below a silver lion on a black stripe across the top of a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give genealogy on YATES.—Mrs. J.Y., Seal Beach.

J.Y.; YATES was the 12th Century English word for "gate" referring to an entrance to a walled town, In 1327 Richard and William Alle (at the) Yate, progeny of the first "dweller at the gate," were Somerset landowners. In the approach to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Owens, a split level effect is achieved in treatment of the ground slope (top photo). The living room view (lower) shows some of the built-ins which are a feature of the dwelling. An abacus, seen at right, effects a divider between the living room and kitchen.

Sleek, Modern and Unique

By Stella George

SLEEK, MODERN lines of the striking new home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Owens, 115 E. 36th St., are emphasized by a windowless front exposure and split-level effect of the approach. But the lack of "facial" glass is more than counterbalanced in the remainder of the home which is light, airy and cheerful.

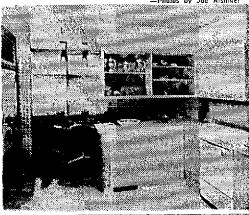

While the home is new, it has a lived-in, warm feeling which is undoubtedly due to the interior decorating scheme which merges so well with the architectural design.

The mood of the living room is Persian, How-ever, there are many choice pieces of brie-a-hrae and furniture which Owens picked up in such far-

Glass gets ample play in the home, although the front is windowless. Beams above the patio area appear to enlarge its size. Lawn separates the house from the garage.

off places as Africa, Arabia, South America and Europe,

Gold carpeting is used and the walls of the room are paneled in birch. On one wall a built-in unit houses the hi-fi, television set, cupboards and shelves for knickknacks and books.

THE SECTIONAL couch is avocado and gold, with gold, orange, and black occasional chairs nearby. The coffee table is an out-sized brass tray from Persia. An abacus has a room dividing effect between the living room and kitchen. The entire far wall of the living room is glass facing a covered patio.

The guest room, with ample closets, is colorful with custom designed bedspreads of lavender and scarlet on green. Pink tones are used in the bathroom, and the tiny bird cage in the wallpaper is accented with a hanging pink cage in the corner.

One of the many distinctive features of this home is the extensive use of built-ins. In the master bedroom, in addition to large, spacious closets, there is a built-in dressing table with drawers underneath. There is also a custom-built shoe closet. The bed is built in with wide drawers near the floor providing storage space for extra blankets, etc. Furnishings are Italian, rich in appearance and with long lasting quality. Interesting hanging lamps adorn either side of the bed. The sliding doors of the closet are entirely mirrored, seeming to double the size of the room. All the doors in the home are eight feet high.

"PRETTY AS a picture—and how big!" guests exclaim when they enter the kitchen-dinette area of the Owens' home. Pink, cheerful and clean, is used tastefully in the kitchen. Counters are pink; appliances are pink. The floor is gold flecked tile; the cupboards are birch. It is possible that few kitchens, regardless of the size of the home, have more cupboards and drawers than here—a total of 35 drawers and 18 cupboards. The number of feet of work area would be hard to figure, suffice to say that the counter top next to the sink extends to the dinette where it juts out to form a divider and then continues the width of the dinette itself. Cupboards and drawers above and below the dividercounter have access from either the kitchen or dinette side,

THE BUILT-IN stove fits in a corner with handy access to the refrigerator at the right. At one end of the kitchen are laundry facilities with handy cupboards facing the washer and dryer. At the other, the dinette faces the patio and garden. Dinette chairs are black, the table top white. From every point of view, architecturally and decoratively, the area is expertly and excellently planned.

The patio, with hammock and potted piants, is a pleasant area. Lawn separates the home from the garage in the rear. Adjoining the garage is a small apartment, a tiny replica of the main home. The garage, which could easily accommodate three cars, is designed to provide space for a workshop. Here again, builtins provide storage space for countless items.

Because bass wood is soft, close-grained and light in color, and is used extensively for wood burning, it is considered best for the Friendship Board. It is easy to work with and costs very little more than less desirable woods. Years later, a light, hand-sanding will make a board look like new.

You will enjoy making Friendship Boards, for each one will be individual and express you.

By Mildred K. Flanary

PAKED HAM, glazed and garnished, or roast leg of spring lamb, are just right for a buffet centerpiace, one or both depend-

Wilderness

"two fishermen on every rock," there is within the rock," there is within the forest itself the 35,000-acre Devil's Canyon-Bear Canyon Wild Area where policy dictates the preservation of na-ture in all its pristine grandeur. No roads, no man-made structures mar the eternal beauty of mountain, forest and stream. Here the solitude of the wilderness makes the cares of the city seem fussy and centuries away.

Indian pictographs painted on giant stones just outside the boundaries of the forest near Valyermo are only a few airline miles from the world's greatest assemblage of television towers and as-tronomical observatories atop Mt. Wilson. In the Angeles the skier may leave his snowpacked slopes and in less than an hour toast his chilled fingers like the Joshua trees with their arms extended skyward in supplication to the warmth of the desert sun. In many places he may stand and observe the results of one of this planet's most violent convulsions, the San Andreas Fault, and at the same time look down upon land falling away to the horizon as level as the floor of an ancient sea.

If it's a desert in bloom in the spring or the enchant-ment of some fern covered dell, the outdoor lover can find it in the Angeles Na-tional Forest. Here the stately yucca plant, the "Candle of God," will guide the visitor to the high forest where, after a visit or two, he may feel a bit closer to the Creator of this wonderful outdoor world.

LESTION: "Should my son go to summer school? He needs the credit, but he also seems to need a rest from his school books."

ANSWER: The experts tell us that summer school is a fine idea for some boys and girls, but that many— probably most of them— should not attend summer

Most students, as well teachers and parents, need the summer break. It comes just as interest begins to lag. The summer months give them a chance to restore their reservoir of enthusiasm and curiosity. But for some the summer session is just the thing. As a matter of fact, summer school enrollments in recent years have skyrocketed.

Here are some of the reasons why students go to summer school:

ACCELERATION—Some able students cut one or two semesters from their high school career by combining summer school attendance with extra work during the regular school session. A few are now entering college as sophomores, and the number doing so will increase steadily.

ENRICHMENT—Many classes have been established.

lished for very superior boys and girls in such fields as science, mathematics and foreign languages. These summer school classes supplement the work of the regular school year.

MASTERY OF SKILLS—The average youngster taking a full college preparatory course does not have time to take such subjects as typing or industrial arts. Summer school gives him an opportunity to take some of these courses.

ART AND MUSIC-Highly concentrated doses of academic subjects also often prevent a student from devoting any time to such cultural subjects as art and music. Yet, these subjects are part of a well-balanced education. Summer school gives the student an opportunity to take some of these courses between June and September.

MAKEUP - Many students still go to summer school simply to take subjects in which they have exschool simply to take subjects in which they have experienced difficulty during the regular session. For example, some school systems offer "reading school," "math schools," and "writing schools," in which the student can get individual help and a concentrated dose of the subject in which he is weak.

So whether your child should go to summer school depends on numerous factors and his individual needs. If you are still uncertain, check with the teacher or the school counsellor.

(If you wish assistance in helping your child to do good work in school, mail questions and requests to Harry Karns, Room 403, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12. Letters cannot be answered individually, but some will be answered in this "Grade Card" column.)

As a Daughter Sees Marconi

By Vera Williams

GUGLIELMO MARCONI, the father of modern communications, lived a stormy and climactic life.

An intimate if understandably biased documentary of the world of the inventor of the wireless telegraph is given by the great man's daughter, Degna Marconi, in "MY FATHER, MARCONI" (McGraw Hill, $7.50), an outstanding, illustrated biogra-

The whole sweep of this incredible tale is there. Marconi, supported by his Irish mother, and ridiculed by his Italian father, assembled his first wireless telegraph at the age of 20 and transmitted radio signals several hundred meters in a tiny attic laboratory,

Years of struggle, controversy and crisis followed as the Italian government rejected his patent and he traveled to England where his idea finally found acceptance.

Recalled is his moment of high triumph when, in 1901, he flashed the first transatlantic signals from Newfoundland to Cornwall, thus proving worldwide communication possible,

In the midst of long-awaited acclaim Marconi fell violently in love with Beatrice O'Brien. This classic marriage was to end in tragedy. Daughter Degna recalls how her father remarried, to a woman only a fraction of his age, weathered a busi-ness scandal that nearly wrecked his career and company and continued persistently to the final days of his long life to perfect his monumental creation.

A GOOD Irish novelist reads like a good Irishman talking, rich in inventiveness and humor. John D. Sheri-dan's "GOD MADE LITTLE APPLES" (Farrar, Straus and Cudahy, $3.95) is beautifully told, the life of a mendicant friar relived in his mind as Brother Bertrand lies in a hospital bed after a heart attack.

It is a life of hardship and joys, in which prayer and peeling potatoes mingle. He recalls his brother Hugh, who wen and broke his mother's heart; the lively and colorful people of the market places. It is a simple and tender

He Trains Dogs for Stardom

BACK IN 1932, a lad found himself a job as a kennel boy and assistant dog handler. His name was Bill Koehler, and his career in dogs was destined to bloom like flowers in May.

During the war, Koehler was principal trainer at the War Dog Reception and Training Center at San Carlos, Calif. Later he became instructor of the field dog classes sponsored by the Irish Setter Club of Southern California as well as chief trainer for the largest open membership dog club in the world, Orange Empire Dog Club (more than 10,000 dogs trained by this club). He also became the selector and trainer of Hollywood's most famous dog actors.

Koehler chose and trained Roy Rogers' German shepherd, Bullet; Wildfire, bull terrier star of MGM's "it's a Dog's Life;" the wire-haired terrier star of "The Thin Man" TV series, Asta; Old English sheepdog, Sam, "The Shaggy Dog;" the great Danes of "The Swiss Family Robinson," Turk and Duke; the hound, Tom Dooley, featured in "The Misfits."

WALT DISNEY turned to Koehler for an Irish setter to play the part of Redcoat Reilly of Wintapi in "Big Red." The script was a difficult one and Koehler had just four months to locate the right dog and to train him. After screening some 20 prize Irish setters, he selected Champion Red Aye Scraps, U. D. (the utility degree being the utmost in obedience).

DECIDING where to shop in Hong Kong is almost exactly like deciding where to eat in New York or Paris (ex-cept that you don't have Chinese Communist restaurants in New York or Paris, but you do have Chinese Communist department stores).
As a genuine, center cut free port and the largest in the world, Hong Kong is with-out much question the bargain center of the universe.

MOST ARTICLES on shopping begin with what to buy. In Hong Kong the answer is almost everything except (for U.S. residents) items that come from Red China, Typi-cal Red Chinese products are ivory, linens and furniture. In practice, up to $50 worth of these are winked at by U.S. customs officials, mainly to avoid penalizing Hong Kong merchants for water over the dam.

Normally, however, a Cer-tificate of Origin is required. This is a document that certifies an item was not manufactured in Red China or of Red Chinese materials.

Certificates usually cost 90 cents each. But, because one may be used to cover up to $150 worth of merchandise, it is advisable to buy as many certified products as possible in a single shop.

The tourist will do most of his shopping on the penin-sula called Kowloon, a bustling city of sleek, modern department stores and suave specialty shops. They contain bargains enough for the most astute shoppers.

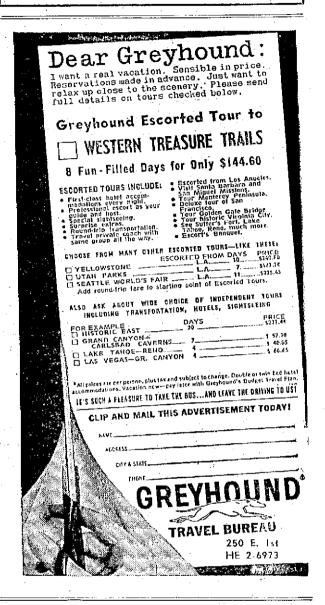

THE GREATEST of these are in tailor-made clothing, an area in which there is as much price variation as in any other city. You have smart chrome-and-glass emporiums like Harilela's, one of the most successful department stores in the world, run (Continued on Page 23)

Caribbean Happy Land

By Fred Taylor Kraft

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, U. S. Virgin Islands
ALL HAPPY people, short happy people, slim happy people, fat happy people!

That describes the easygoing natives of Charlotte Amalie (a-MAL-ya), quaint capitol of one of the loveliest spots in the Caribbean sea, the Virgin Islands of the United States.

Travel writer Horace Sutton says the islands themselves are "a bargain basement shaded with palms and irrigated with runt.

Charlotte Amalie, named after a Danish queen (the U. S. acquired the Virgin Islands from Denmark in 1917 for $25 million), is located on the island of St. Thomas, one of about 30 islands, islets and cays in the U, S. group (the British Virgin Islands lie directly east of the American chain).

THE LITTLE CITY itself -about 18,000 inhabitantsis nestled contentedly behind a beautiful harbor and rises prettily into the hills, bearing a faint resemblance to Acapulco, Mexico.

We arrived in the midst of a post-Easter festival. In the evening, the soft, tropic air echoed with laughter and happy voices as thousands of natives danced in wolf packs up and down the street to the music of throbbing steel bands.

Eighty-five per cent of the natives have varying amounts of Negro blood. There is virtually no crime. If one is committed, the culprit must leave the islands, never to return.

"We are just one big, happy family," a police offi-cer told me. "The most common offense is over-indulgence. If a man imbibes too much, we take him home and he sleeps it off there. Our jail is a lonesome place."

TRAVELERS VISIT the Virgin Islands for their beauty and their climate. Trade winds keep the temperatures 70 to 90 degrees the year around, with an average mean of about 78 degrees. Humidity rarely rises above 50.

Travelers also come to the Virgins to shop. It is the only place in the world from which you can bring $200 duty-free purchase to the United States and the array of modern shops are, indeed, as Sutton says, a "bargain basement."

For instance, you can buy four ounces of Carnet de Bal perfume at Charlotte Amalie for $17.50, an item for which you'd pay up to $70 in the United States. Such whiskies as Old Taylor cost $3 a fifth, Smirnoff vodka only $2.

One oddity: beer is more expensive than rum,

ST. THOMAS is often called "the nightclub of the West Indies," Floor shows, steel bands, calypso and limbo dancing done here would put that on a Hollywood movie set to shame, Hotels are adequate, but reservations should always he made in advance. Largest hostelry on the island is the Virgin Isle Hilton which sits on a mountain top overlooking the harbor and picturesque city.

On another hill, on the opposite side of the city, is Bluebeard's Castle, most colorful hotel on the island. Legend has it that the pirate Bluebeard actually lived here, with a covey of wives.

You fly one stop (New Orleans) via Delta Air Lines' Convair 880s from Los Angeles International Airport to San Juan, Puerto Rico, and there you hop a B.W.I.A. Caribair DC-3 to get here-

50 miles east of Puerto Rico. And it'll be a trip you'll never forget.

"We'd like to drift from place to place in Europe in July by car. No tour . . ."

VOU'D better not drift too loosely. Get some firm hotel reservations. This looks like the tightest year in all-British hotels were jammed this week and I could just get one room for one friend.

We ran into one man in Copenhagen who was drifting. He had plenty trouble getting hotels all over. Had to stay in the most expensive in many cases. It shot his budget.

I'd get some hotel listings from the tourist bureaus of the countries—they're all in the New York phone bookand get those hotels lined up.

Dunk Potted Azaleas

By Joe Littlefield

AZALEAS planted in the ground need slow, deep soakings rather than superficial sprinkling in order to grow better in the summer months. Fill pots of azaleas or other plants, three or four times when watering them, and call this one drink of water. You'll notice they'll require less frequency of water-

From now on throughout the summer, every couple of weeks dunk potted azaleas and other potted plants where practicable, into a tub of water. When water stops bubbling, take them out of the tub. That means plants root balls are soaking wet, and they've had a good leaching which means possible alkali has been soaked out.

Fertilize azaleas with an acid food once a month. Give them final trimming for this year, now, or no later than mid-July. Prune or cut them back wherever you wish. They are one of few plants you may cut anywhere on branches without regard to cutting above a bud, a leafless bud, or a side branch, because wherever you cut an azalea branch, automatically half dozen or so small branches develop just below the cut!

Specialists in camellias and azaleas inform us there are two new types of azalea introductions by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. They are Glendale and Gable (Continued on Page 25)

E. SPRING LONG BEACH

BLUE CHIP STAMPS BANKAMERICARD

By Dorothy Jonson

The generous rainfall of the past winter has done many things for your garden. It has definitely helped the shade trees which have been gradually breaking down through year after year of drought.
Also, one or two of the socalled "new" insects which have only recently begun to plague us have become more strong and numerous. These include various beetles that breed in the dry trees.

This year you have the chance to save some precious trees that might otherwise be lost, by giving them the attention we give to the things we value most.

As the dry months come on, be particular to keep up your usual irrigation. Feed and nourish the trees properly and provide them with the necessary mineral elements by using a product contain-ing iron, zinc, manganese and others. Food can be gotten down to the deep root system by punching holes down into the surrounding soil area with a crow bar or similar instrument and filling these holes with food.

PARENTS who seek an "iron-like" lawn where children can play and not damage the turf should plant St. Augustine grass. Homeowners who wish to avoid weeds in the lawn should plant this grass because weeds just don't stand a chance in it!

St. Augustine grass is planted from flats in clumps or from sprigs with bits of root on them. Top dress steer manure or a fine organic mulch material to keep soil from baking, cracking, and hold moisture longer encourages it to grow together faster. Keep moist till grown together, Mow regularly, Over-grown leaves and runners are next year's bloom,

Cushion Chrysanthemums may be planted now for summer-long bloom,

Plant Tuberous Begonia seedling this month. The topheavy young plants need staking for support.

Let spring-blooming bulbs continue to ripen, Cutting the tops when they're still green reduces bloom next year.

Plant fuchias for bloom from now on through summer and into fall, Carnations and chrysan-themums should be planted without further delay.

Mulching to conserve moisture in the soil should begin this month, Use wet peat moss or steer manure or wood shavings.

She never has had to pay for a lesson, but at 19 she did receive some instruction from Alice Marble, who had her change her forehand from a Continental grip to a modified Eastern grip. (She uses the Continental for all other shots.)

On hitting the big-time? tennis scene as a teen-ager Darlene delighted the spectators with her vigorous play, her happy-go-lucky attitude and her sparkling court personality. The buoyant blonde is a bit of a clown at times, and, unlike many fournament competitors, often gives the appearance of actually enjoying herself during a match! She has one of the most genuinely pleasant smiles you'll see anywhere, and she smiles in defeat as well as victory.

After Wimbledon, Darlene is scheduled to return to Long Beach for a rest. She'll play in a few Eastern meets leading up to the National Doubles at Chestnut Hill, Mass., and the National Singles at Forest Hills, N.Y., both starting in the latter half of August,

MILES ARNOLD It Glows in Blue

THE TRAVELER passing through Montana, the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska and other farm states often encounters tall, stately wind-mills, standing like lonely sentinels in fields of wheat, corn or oats.

The traveler zipping along the Santa Ana Freeway in Buena Park often notices a tall, majestic windmill near Manchester Boulevard, In the daytime the curious traveler may wonder what that particular windmill's function is, since no farm is nearby. At night, however, he has no doubts - because the entire towering structure glows with blue neon which calls attention to Arnold's Farm House restaurant at 6601 Manches-

The great windmill is merely one of the farm touches at this large dining place owned by talented restaura-teur Miles Arnold. Its ex-terior and interior decorations are "modern farm," including stained glass windows, sweeping eaves, brass lamps and copper cooking utensils. The food, offered in serve-yourself style, is unusually good, always fresh and modestly priced. The long salad bar offers 17 colorful varieties, and first-time visiters are pleasantly surprised when they learn that the complete dinner (priced from $1,70) includes three of those salads. Also included are potato, vegetable, entree, bev-erage and roll and butter. Among the many entrees are Arnold's famed round of roast beef, which is always tender, juicy and tempting; baked ham, filet of northern halihut and fried chicken, Each day additional entrees are of-fered, such as leg of lamb, Swiss steak or roast turkey. On Sundays, for example, the special entree is mouth-watering chicken and dumplings.

Closed Mondays, the Farm House is open daily from 11 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.; Sundays from noon on. The service is always fast, junior hostesses seating the guests and carrying their plates to the tables. -TEDD THOMEY

Americans 'Respected' Abroad

By BERT RESNIK TV and Radio Editor

Roone Arledge is a diplomat with sportsfolio,

As executive producer of "ABC's Wide World of Sports" (Sundays, 5 p.m., channel 7), Arledge has traveled around most of the world, including behind the Iron Curtain,

He has come back to this nation with one major conclusion.

"There are 'Ugly Americans," he said, "but, by and large, we are tremendously liked and tremendously respected, particularly behind the Iron Curtain," Arledge told of arriving in Moscow last year at the beginning of the new intensity in the Berlin crisis.

"Well, he found some friend who knew another friend who contacted a cab driver and we got what we were after."

Arledge and his crew were in Moscow to cover the U.S.-Russian track meet.

During the meet, Wilma Rudolph, the anchor woman for the American 400-meter relay team, came from far behind to beat her Russian opponent.

MR. PEEPERS' BACK FOR ONE TV NIGHT

Wally Cox Waits for Movie Career to Develop

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—Wally Cox is back—and if his first movie role reminds you of the days when he was TV's droll, $100,000-a-year "Mr. Peepers," that's exactly what the script Frail, spectacled Wally plays a judge at a state fair who gets loaded tasting Alice Faye's brandy-flavored mincement.

The movie is 20th Century-Fox's filmusical, "State Fair."

Remembering his days as "Mr. Peepers" was easy for Wally, who has been collecting nearly $2,000 a week from NBC since 1953. He was such a hit as "Mr. Peepers" that NBC signed him to a nine-year, straight salary contract,

He will make a guest appearance at 10 p.m. today (Sunday) on "Candid Camera," channel 2. Wally will attempt to convince seamen that they should eat nothing but sunflower seeds and water cress on a three-month voyage.

As "Mr. Pecpers," Wally faded from the air in 1955, but his contract went on and on—until it expired seven months ago. That's when Hollywood grabbed him for movies.

That golden TV era of comedy which spawned Wally has long since been replaced by western heroes, men vs. crime and young doctors. At our time "Mr. Peepers," with an audience of 18,000,000, reached what someone on Madison Avenue, called "the institutional stage—like combread and buttermilk."

That was only six years ago but the combread went stale and the buttermilk turned sour when, as Fred Allen said, the sincerest form of television became imitation.

TV SACRIFICED WALLY and gentle, shy "Mr. Peepers" to violence. When Wally went violent himself, in 1956's Walter Mitty-like "Hiram Holiday," it was the bust of the year. Wally played a superman who could floor giants, but he wound up on the floor after only 26 weeks,

Since then he collected, with relish, the money NBC spread over a nine-year period, played occasional TV guest roles and brooded about the career fate which typed him as Mr. Milquetoast, Variety in acting is what he would like but seldom gets. Wally's widely publicized marriage in 1954 to Marilyo Gennaro, a show girl and dancer, brought them a daughter in 1957 and a divorce in 1961. Frugal living has left him well-heeled, with a 360-acre farm near Detroit and a home in Connecticut, where he now lives.

If a movic career develops he will continue to live in the east, "commuting," he grins, "by bus, It's so much cheaper, you

WHEN WALLY DOES ESCAPE from the "Mr. Peepers" image, he is delighted and grateful to those responsible, "Bob Hope," he will tell you, "is the only one who let me do something far out, away from my thin, reedy, Mr. Peepers voice."
He sang "The Lichtenstein Polka" in German on Bob's

sshow and he enthuses:

"I also did a really snooty hipster rock-n'n'-roll guy chewing gum on Hope's show. I was mean and rough, a pushy guy say-ing nasty things about his mother. I enjoy doing those. I hold myself in when I do the Peepers type."

While cashing NBC's checks, he wrote a book, "My Life as a Small Boy," and started a play about a man who has done everything in show business. He's always had a flair for writing, dating back to pre-TV days when he wrote his own material for a night club act. He was getting laughs in the nation's best saloons, in fact, when NBC cast him as. Mr. Reepers" and gave. The national fame, the second of the Can't something be done to bring "Soupy Sales" back? His only "violence" is piethrowing and my children and I miss him terribly,

Mrs. Ken Hopkins, Wilmington, Delaware You can move to Southecu California, Mrs. Hophins, where Soupy's show airs five times a week. His program will run throughout the summer and KABC (channel 7) wants him back in the fall.

Incidentally, Soupy isn't losing any sleep over the demise of his nationwide network show last April 2.

He has just signed a four-picture deal with MGM. The movie studio thinks he's another Jerry Lewis.

I certainly appreciate channel 2 for running a movic at 5 every evening.

I'm always sure the movies have been acted by professionals. These movies give the television audience a rest from the playlets of murder and sex that seem to be so frequent at present, Mrs. Theresa Senvar,

Many of the old movies I've seen have larger doseages of murder and sex than original television productions.

Is Robert Sterling married to Anne Jeffreys? Didn't they play husband-and-wife team in the TV series "Topper"? Aren't they man and wife in real life? My husband says they aren't.

Mrs. Lorene Wardell, Norwalk Yes. Yes. Still yes. They

Russians Want Our Opinions

"But basically they were interested in our opinions as individuals."

He paused and lit his pipe. "In one sense, it was a tremendously frustrating experience," he said, "Without a common language, we spent most of the time like apes, just grinning at each other."

In Czechoslovakia, a Russian satellite, the crew filmed the world figure skating championships at Prague, Arledge noted there was a bitterness towards the Russians. The first hint of that bitterness came when he commented to a moneychanger that Prague was a wonderful city.

"It used to be," replied the money-changer.

A cab driver told the television producer there were three political parties in Czechoslovakia. "What difference does it make that there are three?" rhetorically queried the cab driver? "They're all the same

BECAUSE of his travels, Arledge has reached another major conclusion.

"The magic word around the world is 'television,'" he said. "A television camera atop a truck provides just as much clearance as three cars with security police or 128 official passes."

In his opinion, television and sports are uniquely suited for bettering international relationships.

And if the U.S. State Department should ever get around to trying this approach, they could find no better representative than Roone Arledge, diplomat with scortsfolio.

Daly Happy He's Plugging Cigarettes

James Daly, Broadway, television and motion picture star, says that one of the best things that ever happened to him was his selection—six years ago—as television "spokesman" for a cigarette company.

Daly finds his regular role as a salesman gives him financial security to pursue his professional career with freedom.

(He also regularly appears as reporter Michael Powers in "Overseas Adventure" 10:30 p.m. Wednesday, channel 5).

"IT TAKES CARE of things so that I can afford to work in the theatre and to take chances," explained the actor. "You know, it is very hard to make a decent living in Broadway shows — so many of them close so soon."

Daly has been fortunate in that his six years as a TV salesman have not stamped him with the identity of the company. A well-known actress, who for years was a manufacturer's TV saleswoman, found it very difficult to

Gene Barry Plays Sports Reporter

NEW YORK (NEA)—"I wish I'd never been associated with But Masterson," said Gene Barry.

He leaned forward, intensely and it was obvious that he wanted to get it off his manly chest.

are some residual benefits, of course," he said. "But there's also a lot of residual harm. If ran contrary to everything an actor is trained for. An actor is supposed to use his skill in creating different parts, but in a series like that, you're always doing the same part.

"I made 108 Bat Mastersons, And I can't remember the plots or the leading ladies in any of them. I'll meet an actress and she'll look familiar and I'll ask her where we met. And she'll say she played opposite me in a Bat Masterson."

Barry laughed, somewhat ironically. Then his intensity returned.

"YOU KNOW the worst part about it? It was being in a theatrical prison for four years, But now I'm out. I'm doing personal appearances and I'm exploding! I'm so happy I can be myself I'm exploding." self I'm exploding.

Barry admits that Bat Masterson was good to him in one very important way. He now has the linancial freedom to be discriminating.

Barry is full of plans. There are movies in the works. There's the possibility of another television series, but thi sone would be of the anthology sort, based on the works of Paul Barry stars as a sports reporter in a Gallico story, "The Roman Kid," on the "General Electric Theater" at 9 p.m. today (Sunday), channel 2

There's the outside chance of a good Broadway musical role; Barry proudly told of a let-ter from Richard Rodgers and Alan Jay Lerner, who are working together on a musical for next season, and asked him to come in and talk to them.

AND, MEANWHILE, there is his nightclub act. He's a capable song and dance man and has established himself as a top-flight entertainer. His marquee value is high, and he draws big crowds and treats them to a slick and happy show. Which, of course, is why he says he could work the year around if should so Barry is one of those rarities, a man who has always known what he wanted to do in life.

"At 6," he says, "I knew I wanted to be an actor and I never once deviated from that ambition. But I learned, as a boy, that it was safer to say something else. So I used to say I wanted to be a civil engineer. My parents and their friends would smile at that, where they would have frowned had I said I wanted to be an actor,'

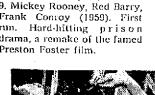

BARRY DID high school and little theater work as a boy, and turned professional when he was 16. He's been a professional ever since and for most of that time, a successful one.

GENE BARRY and Diane Brewster examine statue during "General-Electric Theater" at 9 p.m. Sunday (today), channel 2, ACCENT—Thomas Hart Benton reminisces about the American midwest in pre-miere program of summer-time series, 7:30 p.m. on channel 2. Words and paintings are used, plus a visit to the lounge in the Missouri State Capitol. John Ciardi hosts the summer half-hours, plus four hour-long specials at 10 p.m. during July and August.

BRENNER—The New York detective and his patrolman detective and his patrolman son return with summer-long repeats (except for next two weeks when specials take over) until Sept. 27 when "The Nurses" premieres. The numbers racket is target of opener at 9 p.m. on channel 2.

- Q. Is it true that Colonel John Glenn did not graduate from college?--Donald Tye, Carmi, Ill.
  A. True.
- Q. The various overseas trips taken by the Kennedys—does the taxpayer shell out for these jaunts?—L. N., Moline, Ill.
- A. Where the trips are for official government business, the government pays; where they are for personal purposes such as Mrs. Jackie Kennedy's trip to India and Pakistan, the Kennedys pay.
- Q. I've read that after J. Robert Oppenheimer secured a clearance for Edward Teller, the Hungarian-born physicist, to work at Los Alamos in World War II, Teller then turned around and later testified against Oppenheimer as a security risk in 1954. Is this true?—
  T. L., Washington, D. C.
- A. Herewith Teller's testimony when asked: "Do you feel that it would endanger the common defense and security to grant clearance to Dr. Oppenheimer?" Teller: "I believe, and that is merely a question of belief and there is no expertness, no real information behind it, that Dr. Oppenheimer's character is such that he would not knowingly and willingly do anything that is designed to endanger the safety of this country. To the extent, therefore, that your question is directed toward intent, I would say I do not see any reason to deny clearance. If it is a question of wisdom and judgment as demonstrated by actions since 1945, then I would say one would be wiser not to grant clearance..."
- Q. How many times has Janet Leigh been married? How old was she when she married Kenny Carlyle in 1942?—Norman Duncan, Phoenix, Ariz.
- A. Janet Leigh has been married three times. She was 15 when she cloped on her first marriage.
- Q. Although you say Charlie Chaplin does not take hormones, is it not true that he has had the live cell therapy of Dr. Paul Nichans in Switzerland?—Irene M., Knowille, Tenn.
- A. Reportedly true.
- Q. What effect did the cerebral stroke have on Joseph Kennedy, the President's father?—Marie Sammes, Denver, Colo.
- A. Mr. Kennedy suffered a paralysis of the right side and his vocal cords.

- Q. Now that his wife Louise Fazenda has passed on, will producer Hal Wallis marry actress Lizabeth Scott?

  —Helen Lindley, Chicago, Ill.
- A. A possibility.
- Q. Why did Alec Guinness play in such a film as A Majority of One with Rosalind Russell? George Lucas, Pasadena, Calif.
- A. Guinness' answer: "Simply for the money ($200,000). I'm not such an idealist as people think."
- Q. Since Hal Wallis is at present a widower, will he marry Martha Hyer?—J. L., Burbank, Calif.
  A. A possibility.
- Q. I would like to know to whom Howard Hughes is married, and do they have a baby now? — Bobbic Rauschkolb, Middletown, Pa.
- A. Hughes is married to former screen star Jean Peters. They have no children.
- Q. There is one actress who has appeared in only two movies and has won Academy nominations for both. Can you identify her?—Eugene Mason, Des Moines, Iowa.
- A. Geraldine Page.
- Q. What's happened to Orson Welles?—Rosetta Nichols, Forest Hills, N. Y.
- A. He's in Rome filming Franz Kafka's famed novel The Trial.
- Q. Please tell me how old Sonja Henie is.—Selma Koch, Hollywood, Fla.
- A. Miss Henie is 50.
- Q. Was Maximilian Schell, an Austrian, happy with his role in Judgment at Nuremberg?—J. Heinz, Erie, Pa. A. Schell, pleased with the renown his portrayal of the "villainous Nazi apologist" has brought him, is nevertheless disturbed with the image presented in the picture of today's Germany. He states: "Germany today is still identified with Hitler and his Nazi Party, not as the gay and cultured country it is. The golden age of German culture, of Brahms and Strauss, of art and music and good books is forgotten. The Nazis destroyed this world of romance, and now Germany is pictured as cold, military and industrial. But there are many young Germans who long for the romantic past. I'm among them."

ESSERT TONIGHT HAVE A COOL COUPLE

Jell-O Gelatin and ice cream—as cool a twosome as ever showed up on a hot summer's eve. How to pair em? Strawberry pink ice cream sits especially well with berry-red Jell-O. Or how about this: an upsidedown sundae of Orange Jell-O under a big scoop of vanilla. And if you really want to come on strong, trot out Jell-O and ice cream layered in parfait style. Favor your own flavors. Any way you pair Jell-O and ice cream, you'll have a colorfully cooling creation. Get them together at your house tonight.

You're ON A TRIP with family or friends and you're driving, let's say quite safely and lawfully.

Suddenly police appear. One waves you down with a light. He says, "May I see your license?" He flicks his light, noting your face and the faces of your passengers. Then he hands back your license and waves you on.

This sort of thing may easily happen to you this summer—especially, if you're driving after dark. Police call it the "spot check," "safety check," or "funnel." It's a new and controversial weapon in the fight to keep potential killers off the highways and to keep you and other good drivers on the alert. And police in some of the 25 states now using roadblocks find they are paying off dramatically in fives saved.

On the other hand, the American Automobile Association maintains the roadblock violates constitutional rights. The AAA position is that the spot check is technically an arrest without charge. Some citizens feel equally strongly. Not long ago, for instance, the police of Bloomington, Minn., stopped Attorney Ben Toensing, of Minneapolis. Toensing refused to show his license. He was arrested and charged with violating a city highway ordinance. He fought the case and won.

What are roadblocks, anyway? Do they really violate your rights? How do they work? To find out, PARADE recently rode with patrols in North Carolina and Connecticut, watching state-trooper spot checks in action.

In Connecticut we met one Saturday midnight in a small town hall near U.S. Route 6. There were eight officers in five cars, and this reporter. Plans were made, a surprise location selected, and then the squad rolled out. Without warning they threw a block across U.S. 6 in an area where there had been tragic accidents. Flares sputtered. Patrol beacons whirled. Moments later, cars were pouring into a turnout area.

Drivers were asked for licenses. Police noted whether the drivers seemed soher. Some were asked to try to walk a straight line. Some were given a chemical test; if intoxicated they were arrested.

Stopped cars were asked to test lights, horn, brakes, muffler. Shiny, well-cared-for cars driven by responsible looking citizens seldom were detained more than a minute. Others were held up to an hour while officers checked equipment or talked with the state capital by radio, untangling license or registration problems. Eventually, several were arrested.

In North Carolina work began in broad daylight. A, 'flying squadron' suddenly appeared at a crossroads, stopped cars for a while, then vanished to pop up miles away. The squadron stopped dozens of farmers, city folks, students, even a surprised Presbyterian minister and his wife. One car had no horn ring. "Danged thing wouldn't work, so I just ripped it off," the driver explained. Another driver suddenly stopped and began changing a perfectly good tire. Police, suspicious, found he had no license.

At night the squadron moved again. Even before the flares were set out, a man with a girl came roaring through, trying to drive 17 miles in 14 minutes on busy U. S. 1. Police chased them seven miles and, to the girl's relief, arrested the driver, Minutes later the checkers saw a single, shaky light come around a curve. 'Here comes a one-eye,' called Corp. Dan Emory. He stepped out to flag it but the car kept coming. When the car finally coasted to a stop, the troopers saw why: it had no brakes, wipers, tail-lights or horn—and the driver and four passengers, celebrating, could scarcely stand.

At 11 p.m., troopers decided word of the patrol had gotten around, so they started to close shop. Just as they did, a car roared up, squealed to a stop. The driver whirled it around to flee. Two patrol cars cut him off. Inside, police found three men who had long criminal records. Only a week before a patrol car had lost the same men after a 100 mph chase. Thus in one hour three potential killers were taken off the road.

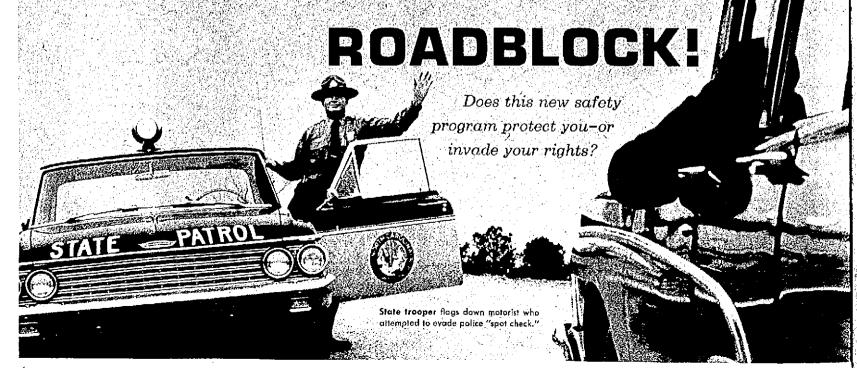

Does all this really save lives? Connecticut police say yes—sensationally. When the state began roadblocks in one area, the death toll was halved instantly. Delaware reports equally astonishing results.

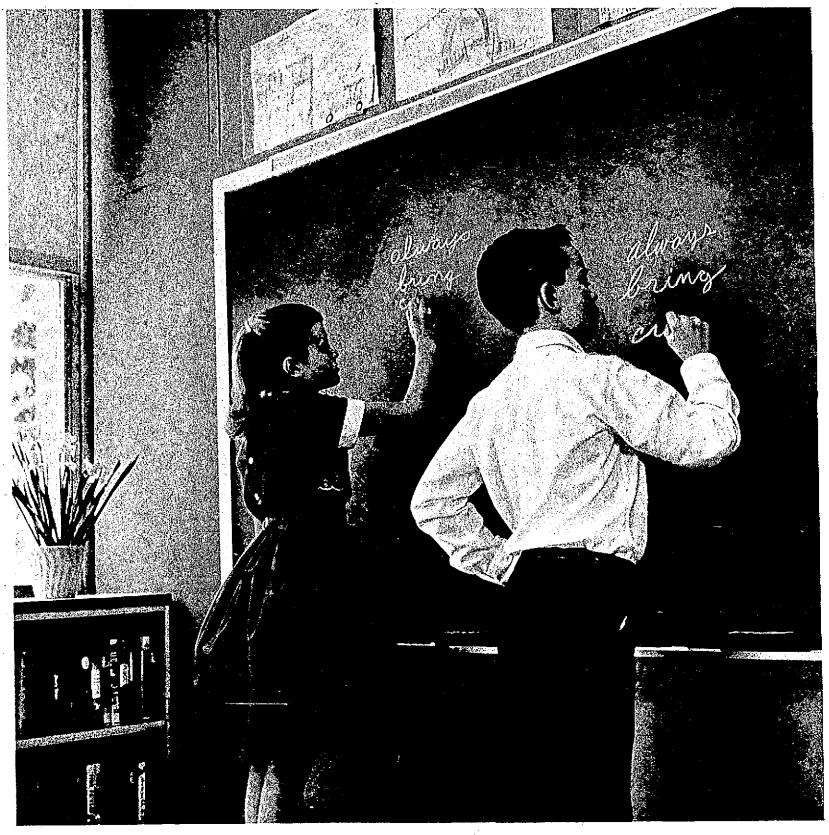

But what do the courts say? Do roadblocks really invade your privacy? In the only major test, the Florida supreme court sided with police, ruled that motorists need protection against those who abuse the driving privilege. The court warned, however, that such police power might some day be abused "to the immeasurable injury of a citizen."

As for a test in the U.S. Supreme Court, AAA attorneys see a precedent in an old prohibition case. When agents were stopping cars on the chance of finding bootleg liquor, the court declared that any legal driver has a right to "free passage without interruption." Only exception: drivers whom police have reason to suspect.

Which side do you take? It's a tough question. To this reporter the best answer, after watching the patrols at work, seemed to be that of ex-FBI man. Edward Scheidt, North Carolina's motor vehicle commissioner. "Such on the road checks," Scheidt says, "are the price of our highway slaughter. When we learn to drive without massive killing, the police will be delighted to get rid of roadblocks, too!"

What do you think? Write your opinion in 100 words or less and send it to Highway Editor, parabe, 733 Third Ave., New York 17, N.Y. In a later report, parabe will publish readers' opinions—B. D. FALES, JR.

by LLOYD SHEARER

IVE YEARS AGO when Elizabeth Taylor's second marriage was ending, and she had pitchman Mike Todd waiting in the marital wings, I called upon her Number-Two husband, actor Michael Wilding.

At the time Wilding and Liz occupied a modern Hawaiian-type hillside house overlooking Beverly Hills. It had been purchased with money borrowed from MGM.

The relationship between Liz and her second husband had diminished from warm poetry to cold prose, so that Wilding could talk of his departing wife with honesty and objectivity, unprejudiced by the passion which had projected him into a marriage in 1952 against the dictates of his common sense.

"The simple truth," he told me, "is that Liz is too beautiful for her own good. All she has to do is snap her fingers and she can get any man she wants. That's her real tragedy. Once a woman conquers too easily, the conquest loses its value. Then she searches around for something or someone more challenging. Eventually the search becomes endless.

"It's a terrible handicap," Wilding continued, "for any girl to be described as 'the most beautiful girl in the world.' How does a woman maintain such a reputation? How does she meet every challenge with a new man? More important yet, how does it affect her relationships with other women?"

Eddie Fisher, husband Number Four, once said, "Being married to Elizabeth Taylor is being married to the most impossible woman in the world. You can only get away with it if you are in love the way we are."

An 'Impossible' Marriage

Fisher made that statement six months after he and Liz were married. Today, love between him and Elizabeth is only a memory, but in all probability he would still use the word "impossible" to describe their marriage.

Marriage to a beautiful actress usually results in unhappiness. It ealls for limitless sacrifices by the husband, since the actress is generally obsessed by her striking beauty. Take three cases in point. Mike Wilding was the leading male movie star in England when he married Elizabeth Tavlor. After five years of marriage to her, he ## can a woman be

found difficulty in getting screen work of any considerable stature. Nowadays he works infrequently.

Eddie Fisher, who once sold 10,000,000 records in four years and was avidly sought after by television producers and supper club impresarios, has practically no following among teenagers today. This means that as a recording artist he is worth comparatively little. Teenagers buy 90 per cent of the single records.

Arthur Miller, one of America's truly great playwrights, succumbed to the beauteous blandishments of Marilyn Monroe. In their four years of marriage he failed to write a single new play, finally came up with a film-flop for his wife, aptly titled The Misfits. When it was finished, the Millers parted. Perhaps Miller will again become productive in a literary way.

Husbands or Drones?

Somehow marriage to a beautiful woman deprives an artist of his talent and industry. He becomes another volunteer in the army of those who work to preserve the public image of his wife's beauty.

Occasionally the husband of a beautiful mate will try to Pygmalionize his wife. He will seek to introduce her to worlds of literature, art, science. The introduction bardly ever takes. Orson Welles tried it when he was married to Bita Hayworth. The best he could do was to end up sawing Rita in half in his magic act.

Artic Shaw was married to Lana Turner and Ava Gardner. Originally attracted by their glamor and beauty, he sought to intellectualize them. Their interest in beauty surpassed their interest in intellect. Shaw left, a bitter but wiser man.

A girl who early in life is told she is beautiful concentrates on that one asset to the neglect of the more important virtues.

Arlene Dahl, who is today one of the world's truly great beauties, told me recently: "The luckiest thing that ever happened to me was that I was not a beautiful child. I had a pleasant personality but I was all one color—sort of reddish blonde. My'eyes were blue, but they were light blue, so they didn't stand out. As a girl in Minneapolis I sang and danced a little. I was a well-behaved child but I always felt that I was very plain. And I grew up with that belief and was always interested in making myself more attractive.

"Girls who know they're beautiful to begin with are usually insufferable. But it's certainly no handicap to be beautiful, because it gets you noticed."

I asked Arlene if there were any dangers in being too beautiful.

"Definitely," she said. "So many beautiful girls have no perspective, no sense of values. They take what they've been given and they don't do anything with the rest. They don't develop their minds, so that in so many cases they attract shallow men, men who are primarily interested in exterior rather than interior beauty."

Arlene, now married to oilman Chris Holmes, was previously married to actors Lex Barker and Fernando Lamas. I asked if her statement might be applied to her.

"A woman is always subject to flattery," she hedged, "and sometimes when you're young some of the most insincere men get to you and they constantly tell you how beautiful you are, and I guess every woman needs that reassurance, so you run off with them and get married-although I must say in my case I kept saying 'no' until the bitter end. Then when you get a little older you become so accustomed to that adulation and the beauty-line that it becomes boring and you start to scratch the surface, scratch below the surface, and look for a real man, a man who is all man. I think Elizabeth Taylor did that with Miké Todd.

"When you're young and beautiful," Arlene went on, "there's a tendency for beauty to attract beauty. A pretty girl wants a handsome man, never mind whether he's brilliant or can carn a living or hold up his end of the conversation. You want to look good in photos and at premières and at parties. Frequently beautiful girls end up with dull but handsome men, and these marriages don't last either.

"The outstanding mistake made by girls who are born beautiful is that they rest on their physical laurels. Beauty frequently brings opportunity—especially in show business—but not necessarily happiness. You need development of the mind and spirit for that."

Do men who work with them day after day believe women can be too beautiful?

Listen to Paul Hesse, photographer of many of the world's most gorgeous creatures: "Being beautiful has spoiled countless women, particularly motion picture celebrities. Everyone kowtows to them, caters to their every whim. The public places them on a pedestal without knowing their true characters.

"In the long run," Hesse maintains, "this adulation brings them grief, because they are unwilling to compromise with or face the realities of life. Many beauties go from husband to husband because they need constant flattery. When one husband gets tired of the routine, the wife finds another.

"In a way their parents are to blame, because as children these women were usually given their own way and never restrained, never made to toe the line. Of course, it's hard to keep a little gfrl in line when she's earning $500 or $600 a week as a movie star and has become the family breadwinner.

"Women should be taught that exterior beauty is not really a woman's most important characteristic. Look at Sophia Loren, for instance. She's no great beauty. Her bones are too large, her mouth too wide, her eyes too narrow, yet she exudes magnetism and sex appeal. Elizabeth Taylor, on the other hand, has beautiful violet eyes, a flawless skin, and a lovely figure—she's the greatest exterior beauty of our time—but does she have inner beauty? It's the inner beauty that counts."

Man in a Candy Factory

Philip Liebmann, president of the Liebmann Breweries, which has been running a Miss Rheingold contest for 24 years, maintains that no woman can be too beautiful. "Let's face it," he says. "Beauty is a woman's stock in trade. The more beautiful she is, the better for her, especially in this country where men are more attracted to the superficial than the profound. As for myself, it's the old story of the man who worked in the candy factory. I see so much beauty as a judge in these contests that now I don't think anything about it."

Liebmann was formerly married to Linda Darnell, one of the most heautiful of all Hollywood movie queens.

George Masters, the youthful hair stylist whose clientele consists of such widely-publicized beauties as Loretta Young, Marilyn Monroe, Audrey Hepburn, Joan Collins, many others, claims that beautiful women very rarely have any close female friends. Apparently beauty in one woman armises jealousy and envy in the have-nots.

"So many beautiful women," Masters avers, "do not get along with other women. Because of this they are insecure. They feel that everyone is watching them for some mistake, some conceit. The result is that they worry very much about their beauty. Still it's no handicap, It only becomes a handicap when they use their beauty badly. Lots of great beauties make themselves too jazzy and fail to developing of their other qualities such as personality and graciousness.

"Many beautiful women such as Loretta Young and Andrey Hepburn and Rosalind Russell—these women concentrate on their minds just as much as they do on their faces and figures."

Orry Kelly, veteran designer who has dressed many of the foremost stage and screen beauties for the past 35 years, maintains that beauty and brains in women rarely go together.

"I wonder," he asks "if the words 'fatal beauty' apply to Liz Taylor? You know, when I look back on all the belles of my early days?—I dressed so many of the great Ziegfeld and George White beauties—I find that only in rare cases did they survive as beauties.

"So much depends upon the bone structure in the face. Ethel Barrymore was a beauty until the very end. Eleanor Boardman, a star of the silent screen, is more beautiful today than ever. Greta Garbo is still a beautiful woman. All were blessed with fine bone structure. But take Marilyn Monroe and Clara Bow—perfectly beautiful faces, but the bone structure around the cheeks isn't there. And in time Marilyn's beauty will go, and I think she knows it, and that doesn't make her very happy or very secure. How secure is the singer who feels that inevitably he will lose his voice?

"Yes, it's sad but so many of the oldtime beauties—most of them end up with 'me, my maid, and the bottle.' From my experience I would say that what destroys a beautiful woman is not her beauty, which gets her men and money, but success. So few beautiful women have the strength of character to handle success. It goes to their heads. They make enemies instead of friends. I hope success doesn't destroy Liz Taylor."

Gls IN GERMANY. If American troops ever pull out of Germany, a lot of German bar-owners will never get over it. Right now in a typical GI training center such as Baumholder, there are 55 taverns which charge the GI $1.25 and up a drink. The bar profits are exorbitant and there are too many bars for the number of troops, but American army authorities can do nothing about it since we are ostensibly the protectors of free private enterprise.

FAT GIRLS. In Soviet Russia, where 80 per cent of the doctors are women, an important obesity experiment is now under way. It involves a group of 50 overweight girls who are being injected with an extract of pituitary gland called Adiposin. The extract is supposed to reduce them by increasing their metabolic rates. The Soviets were one of the first to distribute oral polio vaccine. Now they hope to be the first to develop a cure for obesity.

Russian girls at Black Sea resort are hefty types.

DRUG TRAFFIC INCREASE. Immigrants arriving in England from Africa and the West Indies are reportedly responsible for a rising tide of drug addiction in London. There are many cases of West Indians introducing narcotics to young Irish girls, then forcing them into lives of prostitution to earn enough to continue the habit. This is said to be one of the reasons why the British parliament has passed a restrictive immigration law.

GHANA COMMUNIST HQ. Chana, one of Africa's new republics, has become the headquarters for Communist subversion on the African continent. In Accra, for example, 70 students from Northern Rhodesia are being trained as party commissars, and President Nkrumah is regarded as one of Russia's closest friends.

GIRL GANG BOSS. Maya Devi, 30, India's famed bandit queen who held her men by judicious distribution of her charms, has been caught in New Delhi. Maya, a beautiful female Robin Hood, engineered train robberies, frequently gave money to the poor. Her gang consisted of 50 toughs, all reputedly in love with her. In the last three months the Devi gang pulled off some big capers, netting Maya $50,000 in jewels. She was caught trying to pass herself off as a village peasant.

PRO TENNIS DYING. Jack Kramer, former tennis star turned promoter, announced in Australia recently that he was giving up professional tennis there. Kramer also cancelled last winter's pro tour of the U.S. Reason: Rapidly declining interest by spectators who realize there are no more top amateurs to be recruited into the professional ranks.

NEW HEADACHE DRUG. A new drug has been found successful in preventing most migraine headaches which afflict some 15 million Americans. Its trade name is Sansert. It has been cleared by the Food and Drug Administration of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare for public sale under a doctor's prescription.

PARADE FINDS A POET

Virginia housewife tops 100,000 entries in Parade's search for unpublished poetry Is america a land of poets? Parade's readers have answered with a thundering yes—in what may be the largest poetry contest ever held in the U.S.

Almost before the ink was dry on the announcement of our search for modern, unpublished American poetry (PARADE, January 14, 1962), the entries began flooding in. By the time they stopped coming, poets in every state had sent an amazing 100,000 poems.

The final decision on the winner was made by poet and anthologist Louis Untermeyer, poetry consultant to the Library of Congress. His choice: Thirteen, by Kim Vermeer—a pen name chosen by Mrs. Kathicen Wheatley, 38, an Arlington, Va., housewife and mother of two. She receives a first prize of $250. Special prizes of $100 went to authors of the second and third place entries, Liquorish Styx (a group of poems) by Jane Roschoom, Middletown, Ohio, and Tell Them How Brave by Littleton Told, Denver, Colo.

Even more exciting than the winning poems, though, was the enormous response from readers everywhere—an outpouring of talent that augurs well for the future of American poetry.

THIRTEEN by Kim Vermeer ARLINGTON, VA.

She steps gingerly into the Junior High School.
At the glass case full of brass trophies,
She averts her gaze, as from carrion;
At the room hung with maps,
Her mostrils shrink,
As at a hillside of sourweeds;
And at the far corridor
Where the sweating boys let carnivorous gazes
Crawl towards the girls,
She hugs her notebook over her blouse.

Tall
Like a god,
And brooze-colored
Like a god, too,
He strolls in and announces
In 'cello tones:
"This is American history,
And I am Mr. Sinclair."
His interance, captured in blue ink
In her notebook, spirals into spires
She scarcely recognizes as her own.
Her face flushes,
As when a hot breeze
Comes mistakenly in February,
And when, at the end of the roll call,
He says: "Willhelmina Van Zandt...
'That's a big name for a pixie-person.
May I call you 'Willo'?"
She cannot look up,
As one dares not look at a package
Delivered at the door
Weeks before Christmas.

With The Industrial Revolution Crammed, like a lecomotive, Into her trinket-shop mind, And with no breakfast To another her stomach, She stumbles and soars, Like a kite caught in a crazy current. Towards the red brick castle.

On this uneasy November night, She, sheepless beside her sleeping sister, Rises and tip-toes into the attic. She thought it was to watch the moon, But as she watches it blue and bloom. Blumm and blur, behind the smoke of clouds, She knows it isn't the moon, And opening the trunk Where the doll Julia has been interred three years, She holds the body next to hers, Until they are one-Not in her warmness, but in the doll's coldness . . . In the half-light from the hall, She sees the True Story her sister and her consin-Hid last summer from Mainnia . . . With the man and lady on the cover Kissing so bard Their eyelids are crumpled, as with pain. She puts the doll down, Lifts the cover and reads It is like finding under old leaves Pearls of finigus.

Contest judge Louis Untermeyer congrutulates winner.

Love is not joy,
But fear,
And each morning-recitation a stillbirth
Of the evening's toil.
Added to the numb tongue,
The porcelain lingers;
To the porcelain lingers,
The arrow-tip breasts
Breaking like pleurisy from baby-ribs;
To the arrow-tip breasts,
The pink shame
Flecking the forehead
Beneath the skirt of bangs
... Until her misery for him
Is as obvious as the brittle posture
Under the Midas-touch.

Virginia—
Big and hulbros
With bold black armpits, like suction caps of yearning,
Standing in slip and sneakers,
Whispers: "Guess what? Mr. Sinclair
Was drinking at that double fountain with me,
And his face got so close
I nearly had to slap it."
Virginia—
Pendulous and pouting,
Shrugging electrically out of her slip
And standing io the satin puddle,
With all the vite virtuosity
Of her fourteen years.

Next year
Or the next,
With violets in her ivory hair,
And with the sweet agony of Strauss
Wringing the air,
She will torrent down the stairs,
Spill suddenly into his arms,
And he will sink her sinew-deep into his flesh, Sobbing, "Willo! Willo!"

June tenth:
The beginning of the three-month drought,
When she will live parched
Except for the one page
Of this blue satin autograph book,
Which Virginia has promised
To pass him at the end of the hom
With her prose steady hand.

TELL THEM HOW BRAVE by Littleton Todd | DENVER, COLO.

Tell them how brave we were.
Tell them how we stood at Tsili Tsili behind the lines, waist deep in Kunai grass.
expendable. Tell them of Buna, The Pass,
Wakde, Noemfor, Toem, names little known, not long remembered.

Make it known to the clean shaven men at the polished oak desks who declared each morning at ten,
"Our losses were small, the action indecisive,"

Explain to them there are no small losses close to the trembling earth, no indecision when the blood tumbles headlong into an arm that is not there.

do not burry through the wait-a-minute vines, they will tear the flesh from the bones;
many small holes in the earth are refuge or grave, none knows what his lock will be;
the smell of the python is like musk, close to the body at night.

Crouched in the tangled green, waiting the mortar, waiting the blow from nowhere, there is the uncertainty, the withdrawing inward. The mind trembles, but will not leave the danger.

Speak to them for us. We cannot speak, whose mouths are filled with now triumphant mold, the crawling things. We do not walk whose bones were never found. Tell them that when the blow falls there is no thing left to fear.

The end of time is like a wall of white wherein all sounds are set, all colors couched, all knowing, all forgetting, that in this instant space must mark the mement where the sparrow fell.

For every cry of death, of rage fulfilled, the living die a little.

Tell them not all the hate has healed a single hurt.

Say to the polished desks, to the wives of heroes, the lost names. How small we were, how far away, how indecisive. Tell them how brave.

${f WHEN\ YOU} \ {f MARRY}$

QUESTIONS for BOYS

Answer True or False to each statement about her

- 1 She learned, while still in elementary school, that the stork does not bring babies.
- 2 She wants to clope.
- 3 She can add simple fractions without getting mixed up.
- 4 She doesn't object if you go out with the boys occasionally.
- 5 She does object to your having dates with other girls.
- 6 She finds it hard to make up her mind about things.
- 7 She was rarely spanked as a child.
- B She's had several more years of schooling than you had.
- 9 She rarely or never argues with you about "women's rights" and how males are "exploiting" females.
- 10. She swept you right off your feet the moment you saw her.

T's june, month of romance—and brides. If you're altar-bound, you may benefit from the fact that science now can predict marital success or failure.

Marriage experts in major universities have recently been studying marital happiness. They've questioned thousands of married couples to find out which personal traits affect the success of a marriage.

In Illinois, Drs. Ernest W. Burgess and L. S. Cottrell queried 526 couples married up to six years. In California, the late Dr. Lewis M. Terman of Stanford University surveyed 792 couples wed up to 27 years. Dr. Judson T. Landis of Michigan State College and Mary G. Landis studied 409 couples wed an average of 20 years.

The surprising new facts turned up by these studies can help you pick a mate. Will you marry the right boy? The right girl? Here is a quiz, based on the surveys, that covers factors important to marital happiness. Check your answers against the explanations, then score yourself on points.

—LESTER DAVID.

QUESTIONS for GIRLS

Answer True or False to each statement about him

- 1 He goes to a house of worship two or three times a month.
- 2 He would object strenuously to living with your parents.
- 3 He has at least $500 saved.
- 4 He plans to live in a rooming house or hotel after marriage.
- 5 He's a member of at least two social organizations.
- 6 He has had at least three different jobs in different places during the past two years.
- 7 He's not more than a foot taller than you.
- 8 If he arrives late at a meeting, he would rather stand all evening than walk to a front seat.
- 9 You will be his first wife,
- 10 He swept you right off your feet the moment you saw him.

Here's how the experts size up your chances

BOYS' ANSWERS

- 1 Sound sex instruction has much to do with marital happiness. The surveys clearly disclose that girls who learned basic facts at fairly early ages from parents or teachers make better marriage partners than those who acquired those facts later.
- 2 Elopements are dangerous! A very high percentage result in marital failure.
- 3 Girls who are not confused by simple arithmetic find married life less troublesome than those who are baffled by it. They can think problems through more clearly.
- 4 Girls who monopolize a man's time before marriage will do so after marriage (but see 5).
- 5 It's normal, however, for a girl to insist on exclusive dating rights with a prospective busband. There are no bad after-effects.
- 6 Neurotic wives are unhappy wives, and indecisiveness is a neurotic trait, studies show. Other neurotic traits: feelings easily lurt, excessive shyness, considerable day-dreaming, getting discouraged easily.
- 7 Girls spanked as children are more likely to have unhappy marriages than those not.
  8 Marriages are happiest if the wife's schooling is less than or equal to her husband's. If greater, a man is apt to feel inferior.

9 Outspoken crusaders for equal rights for women are more likely to get into spats with their busbands.

10 Marriages built solely on romance are less apt to succeed than those in which love has grown more slowly, developing from companionship.

GIRLS' ANSWERS

- 1 and 5 Young men who make friends, are active in social organizations and regularly attend religious services turn out to be better husbands than lone-wolf types who have little or no religious interest.
- 2 Strong antagonism toward in-laws is an early warning sign. Living with them isn't the best idea in the world, but a young man ought not to object violently.
- 3 and 6 One study reports: "The prudent, thrifty and stable young man is a better matrimonial risk than the reckless, extravagant and mobile individual."
- 4 Couples living in rooming houses and hotels don't establish roots; hence their marriages have the lowest chances of success. An apartment or home of their own can give a couple a sense of belonging which they would lack in more temporary dwellings.

- 7 Marriages in which the male is more than a foot taller turn out less well than those where the difference is not so marked.
- 8 This indicates excessive shyness, a neurotic trait that can harm marriage. Others: feeling miserable often, losing temper easily, being often in a state of excitement.
- 9 First marriages have a better chance of happiness, surveys indicated.
- 10 See answer to 10 of Boys' quiz.

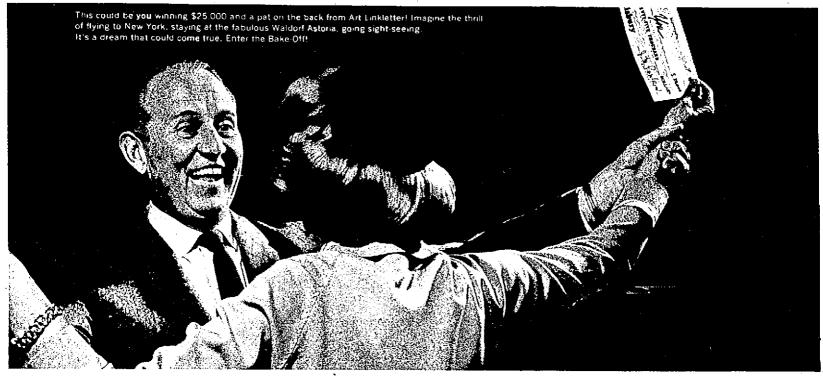

SCORING: Count 10 points for each TRUE answer to the odd-numbered statements and 10 points for each FALSE answer to the even-numbered ones.

Did you score between 80 and 100? Then you—boy or girl swould seem to be an excellent marital risk. Between 40 and 70? A few rough spots but nothing to worry about. If you scored 30 or less, better panse and ponder until you're absolutely sure.

The important lesson to be drawn from the quizzes is this: it's foolish to rush blindly into marriage and hope you'll live happily ever after. So look carefully, because there is much you can see before you take the leap.

NEW YORK.

THERE ARE 24 LADIES here with lots of gumption who run one of the most amazing charities in the nation.

They have no paid experts, no fancy offices. And they have no overhead expenses. But they do have tough shoe leather, abundant persistence and the love of a departed friend to spur them on-

With these qualities, they have raised hundreds of thousands of dollars in the past 14 years for cancer treatment and research.

Housewives and career women, these ladies comprise the Lila Motley Cancer Foundation, Inc. By judicious use of the foot in the door, the phone call and the personal letter, they have:

- 1) Contributed a giant, $156,000 X-ray unit (2,000,000 volts) to the Hospital for Joint Diseases here;
- 2) Helped finance an outpatient clinic for cancer patients at the same hospital;
- 3) Pledged $750,000 to pay for a full floor of the new University Hospital in the New York University Medical Center. The floor will be devoted to radiological research and treatment of patients with cancer.

"The Motley Girls," as they are known, really were an organization before they had a cause. More than 20 years ago, the Girls met periodically at each other's homes to play cards. One of the members was a housewife named Lila Motley.

She was a quiet, unassuming woman who delighted in helping people who needed help,

"I know someone whose son is in trouble," she would say. "Can we raise a few dollars to get him a lawyer? He's really not a bad boy."

"Let's help a little girl I know who wants to learn to play the piano. Her parents are so poor." Or . . .

"An elderly couple in the neighborhood needs money. They were supported by their daughter, but she died last week."

Then, in 1943, Lila Motley herself needed help. She developed cancer and underwent surgery. The operation did not stem the disease, Lila Motley died-

The Girls decided to go right on doing the charitable work Lila Motley had initiated. After a few years, they made another decision: Why not raise money so that hundreds, perhaps thousands, of cancer victims like Lila Motley might be saved? The Girls started running bazaars, parties and dances to raise funds.

Nowadays, the group uses only two events a year for fund-raising-a theater benefit party and the Peacock Ball, one of the major social events of the year in New York. A raffle is held in conjunction with the ball.

Help from Business

To stage these two events, the Cirls boldly enlist the aid of big companies—and get that aid free of charge. They have been given films by Columbia Pictures to show at benefit previews. A Broadway producer last year turned over a músical hit for a Motley benefit per-

Major corporations such as General Time Corp., Parliament Cigarettes, the Imperial Pearl Syndicate, the Roosevelt Hotel, New Orleans, and King's Ransom help to underwrite costs of the ball. Ball queens have included such stars as Cyd Charisse, Judy Holliday and Hermione Gingold.

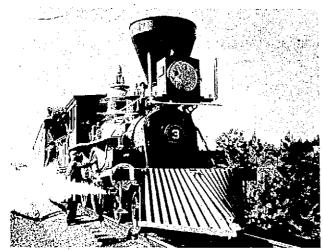

If the Motley Girls have a philosophy of fund-raising it's this: "Let your donors have some fun while they're giving their money.'

Right now, the Girls' big project is fulfilling that $750,000 pledge to University

"We're well on our way toward raising it," the Girls told PARADE. "And after that's done, we'll find another cancer treatment center that needs some help."

That is how the warmth and generosity of Lila Motley have survived all through the vears.

THE GENERAL' RIDES AGAIN

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

THERE'S A PANIOUS little engine that's probably headed your way. The General, the hallomy-stacked locomotive which figured in one of the Civil War's most thrilling episodes, is making a tour of American cities. Still sturdy at 107 years old, it's traveling under its own steam for the first time since 1914.

Anyone here who doesn't know about The General and the Great Locomotive Chase? It took place in 1862. Twenty daredevil Yankees, led by secret agent James J. Andrews, captured the engine while the crew was at breakfast and headed for Union territory. The crew gave chase. After 100 hairbreadth miles and frantic switching of engines they ran the kidnappers to earth. Eight were hanged and the rest jailed.

Not long ago, as these photos show, the 100th anniversary of the historic chase was celebrated. The General, which had been on display at Union Station here, was lovingly rebuilt and relitted for the occasion. Fifty thousand persons lined the Louisville and Nashville Bailroad tracks between Atlanta and Chattanooga to watch the little engine ching along the rails. Speciators cheered, rebel yells echoed, beards bristled, flags fluttered, speeches droued and an uncounted number of bands played Dixie.

Festivities began at Big Shanty, northwest of Atlanta, where the Union raiders actually had seized the train. The whole welcoming ceremony, including Confederate bayonet charges and artillery salutes, was repeated at Calhoun, at Dalton and at Ringgold, where the original chase ended. When the little engine reached Chattanooga (it had never topped 30 mph), it had carned a good rest. But all this was only the beginning. For The General, it will be a long summer of noisy welcomes.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

THE LATE DAMON RUNYON, master of Broadway prose, might have opened this report with words like these; "I am taking a stroll the other day through Mr. Edgar Hoover's establishment here, peeking at some of his collection of mug shots, when whom do I encounter but my old friends Jimmy the Sniff, Mutton Head, Sally the Sheik, Blah Blah and Cockeyed Phil. A little later, I renew my acquaintance with some other characters who get around, such as Mike the Geep, Tea Bags, Frank the Spoon, Three-Finger Pansy and none other than Silk Shirt Jimmy, who has a fancy taste in duds but, who is not fancy in his methods when pursuing a fast buck."

These odd monikers, which might have come straight out of Guys and Dolls, in fact came straight out of the federal rogues' galfery. Not even Runyon's hilarious imagination could surpass the real-life underworld in the coining of strange, fanciful and often most ant nicknames.

Why this underworld passion for inventing colorful names? To mobsters, names are daugerous and not likely to be exchanged, even among friends. Nor are they to be used casually on a telephone that might be "bugged." Still in crime, as in any other business, people have to be identified.

A hoodhun may go through a dozen aliases, shedding names like old suits, to confound the law. But to his cronies, he is known consistently by his nickname, which serves almost as a code.

Tongue Twisters

Mobsters with tongue-twisting Sicilian names have found it effective to use variations of their real names. The Narcotics Bureau regards Joseph Bonànno, for example, as one of the country's top 10 criminals, yet isn't quite sure how to spell his name. He has written it variously as Bononno, Bonnano, Bannani, Bananni and Bouventre. But in the underworld, there is no confusion; he is known simply as "Joe Bananas."

Some racketeers would like to shed their nicknames. The late and unlamented Arthur Elegenheimer was known throughout the underworld as "Dutch Schultz." But anybody who addressed him as such did so at his immediate peril. Dutch used to complain that his nickname was the chief cause of his notoriety. It made such a handy headline. Had the beadline writers been forced to spell out "Arthur Flegenheimer," he might have escaped the spotlight.

A gangland chief's titular nickname may take different forms. Mike Miranda, terror of New York's garment district, is known in those sewing circles as "Mr. Big." Or "Big John" Ormento, the diamond-studded boss of Manhattan's notorious 107th Street Mob, is also called "Governor." In the Philadelphia underworld, Joseph Rugnetti is "Joe the Boss." But "Boss," although an underworld title, is low in the hierarchy. The highest rank: Vito Genovese, most powerful single individual in the rackets today, is known simply as "The Old Man."

Most gangland nicknames are self-explanatory. In the New York underworld, for instance, half a dozen hondlums are identified by their oversized noses. They include "Sal the Beak" Speciale; "Schnozzola" Sansone; "Frank the Huck" Borelli. Then there's "Rig Nose Larry" Orlando, not to be confused with "Larry Nose" larossi. "Jimmy the Sniff" Vintralaro owes his moniker to his habit of inhaling with a delicate suort. Even in his mug shot, his nose is wrinkled as if in the act of suiffing.

Or it may be the eyes. "Jimmy Blue Eyes," is 'Vincent Alo's nickname, while Harlem hoodlum Joseph Tocco, a man with a chilling stare, is "The Eye." Those who squint or blink are often nicknamed accordingly, like Earl "Squint" Coralluzzo of New York and Frank "Blinky" Palermo of Philadelphia.

In California two underworld characters are named Frank Paul Dragna, one the son, the other the nephew of the late, dreaded Jack-Dragna. Since the son has a glass eye, fellow hoodlums keep them apart by calling him "One Eye" and the nephew "Two Eye." The Chicago underworld is divided, however, over whether to call Salvatore Pisano "Solly One Eye" because of a bum blinker or "Fats" Pisano because of his 325 pounds.

The term "Black" has a dashing connotation. Perhaps this springs from tales of the early blood fends in Sicily before the Mafia, or Black Hand Society, got into American crime. Detroit has the two most notorious racketsers of that name: "Black Tony" Fermaine and "Black Bill" Tocco.

The slurred speech of underworld denizers has also produced strange nicknames. Take the late Jacob Shapiro, better known as "Gurrah," who would never have graduated summa cum lande from a school of elocution. His favorite directive was "Get out of here!" But on his tongue, it sounded like "Gurrah." Manhattan mobster Angelo Abbrescia came to be called "The Brush," because that's how his last name sounded as it came storring off hoodlam tongues. Then there's Morris Barra, who started calling himself Mickey Morris. Gangland soon reduced this to "Mickey Mouse."

Anthony Corallo is called "Tony Ducks" because of his agility in ducking subpoenas. "Tony Boots" Francomano of the Bronx used to hide narcotics in his shoes. George Smutra, a great talker, is "Blah Blah."

Solomon Bloom, who is known around New York as "Mutton Head" and "Blubber Head," is said to be muscle-brained. But anyone who would suggest this in the Blubber's presence might get his own head blown off. "Tony the Chump" Abate, Detroit gambler, is also sensitive about his nickname.

"Charlie Bullets" Albero of the Bronx, not surprisingly, has been arrested for carrying concealed weapons. "Trigger Mike" Coppola, lately of Miami Beach, is of like reputation. "Charlie the Blade" Tourine, also of Miami Beach, is a specialist in other methods of maybem.

Clyde "Flip Flop" Smaldone, ruler of the Colorado rackets, frequently changes his mind. Ausan Bistoni, otherwise known as "The Aga Khan," is a big international spender. "Tony Bones" Castaldi of Manhattan has a weakness for rolling dice, or "bones."

On the underworld's best-dressed list are "Dandy Phil" Kastel of New Orleans, "Dandy Jack" Parisi of Hazelton, Pa., and "Silk Shirt Jinmy" Tessalone of New York.

Some Wild Bugs

"Benny the Cringe" Indiviglio, his face blotted with acne, is the cringing sort; while Frank Caruso is "Frankie the Bug" ("Bug" being an underworld term denoting wildness). "Crazy Tommy" Contaldo is another wikl man from Brooklyn. "Mike the Geep" Sedotto simply has a zombie-like appearance.

Other nicknames are fascinating in their obscurity. For example, nobody seems to know why Sam Servitella, a Chicago mobster, is known as "Zupic." Nor why Frank Russo, a St. Louis hood, is called "Weatherbird."

Why is Rosario DiMaggio, a Manhattan mobster, called "Za-Za" although he looks nothing at all like the glamour queen of the same name? And who short-changed Angelo Salerno of the Bronx that he should be known as "Charley Four Cents"? The authorities can only guess.

But the police are getting wise to the nicknames, and barassed boodlums are reverting more and more to cryptic initials. It's getting so that police tappers seldom pick up more than guarded references to "Mr. H" or "Mr. Z" or just plain "P.J." Joseph Doto, the deported gambling czar, started this practice. Because of his bandsone profile, he was called "Joe Adonis." He didn't like "Adonis" because it looked too good in headlines, so he settled by answering simply to "Joe A."

Now there's a "Joe Z," as hoarse-voiced Joseph D'Ercole of the New York underworld has become known. In Chicago, Anthony Dichiarinte is "Tony D," and in St. Louis, Anthony Giardano is called "Fony G."

You may chuckle over underworld nicknames. But the men who bear them are no joking matter.

by JACKIE VERNON

Entron's note: Jackie Vernon, exponent of the current "new school" of comedy, was born in New York City 31 years ago. Like so many contemporary comics he got his show-business start while serving in the Air Force. He performed at a bond drive and generated such widespread enthusiasm that he decided to enter show business. Jackie achieved prominence at the Playboy Club in Chicago, then moved on to the Blue Angel in New York and the hungry i in San Francisco.

He delivers his monologue in a dead pan fashion, underplays his routine all the way, Here is a bit of material from his act.

My grandfather was an old Indian fighter—Grandmother was an old Indian. Grandfather left the West at on early age. They made him leave because one day he broke the code of the West—he said a discouraging word.

I remember the time my mother was hugging my father to buy her a hearing aid. He had promised that he would get her one for her birthday. A few months later on the evening of her birthday, Mother was waiting for Dad to arrive home and hoping he hadn't forgotten his promise to get her the hearing aid. He finally arrived and handed her a package. Mother was overjoyed that he had remembered. She opened the package which contained a wire about four inches long.

"What's this?" she shouted at Dad-

He replied, "Don't get excited! A hearing aid costs $150.00 but that wire only costs a quarter."

Mother was fit to be tied. "How is this stupid wire going to make me hear better?" she screamed.

"Very simple," said Dad. "You attach one end of the wire to your car and the other end to your collar. When people see the wire, they will talk louder."

My dad had an unusual job. He was a seam straightener in a liverwurst factory.

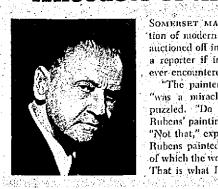

My favorite books are How to Cheat at Salien Tests, Pig Latin for Pinmp Romans, What to Do in Case of Peace, and New Hope for the Dead.

The meck shall inherit the earth—the brave ones will be going to the moon.

I walked by a funeral parlor one day and saw a note in the window that read, "Closed because of a birth in the family."

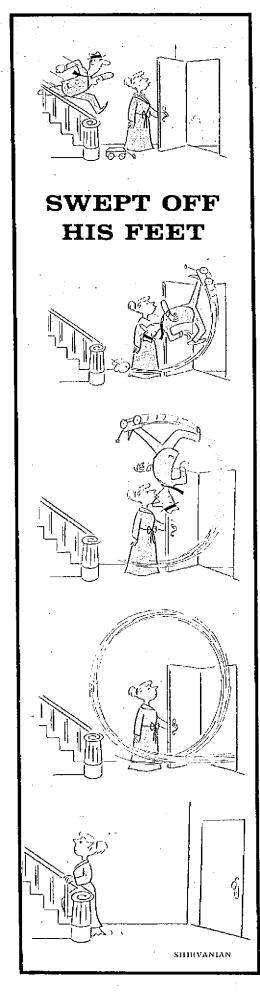

I received an unusual gift last Christmas—a used bowling ball with a thumb in it.

Anecdote of the week

SOMERSET MAUGHAM, whose collection of modern paintings was recently auctioned off in London, was asked by a reporter if in his long life he had ever encountered a miracle.

"The painter Rubens," he replied, "was a miracle." The reporter was puzzled. "Do you imply, sir, that Rubens' paintings were miraculous?" "Not that," explained Maugham. "But Rubens painted only 2,000 canvases of which the world now has 3,000 left. That is what I call a miracle."

Teachers' Assn. Boycotts Norwalk Schools

The Little Lake City School District operates 12 elementary schools in Norwalk and Santa Fe Springs, a few miles northeast of Long Beach, teaches 8,000 children through the eighth grade, and is the center of an unprecedented and raging educational controversy.

The California Teachers' Association, by far the largest organization of professional educators in the state. has placed "sanctions" against the district-in effect, a

The Board of Education has held to its policy, but by a shaky 3-2 margin. It blames the teachers' actions on a protest against a drastic action undertaken two years ago by the district. It discarded "progressive" education, returned to "fundamentals."

The district, in 1960, began assigning regular homework-from the first grade on. It began disciplining children, flunking them, grading them on competitive

And it began to have a whale of a lot of trouble. Little Lake is the first school district in history to be "sanctioned" (or boycotted) by the powerful CTA, which voted itself that power only last April.

In brief, the Teachers' Association charges the district with harassment and ridicule of teachers, with creating a situation where 50 per cent of the teaching

They accuse the C.T.A. of attempting to change the community's policy on "fundamental" educaof making false statements, and of fomenting a recall action to bring a return to "progressive" education in the system.

To quote Plotkin, a Norwalk attorney:

The effect of the sanctions imposed by C.T.A. remain to be seen. The teacher group specializes in placement of teachers, will no longer refer its members to Little Lake for jobs. The C.T.A. also has an influence on teachers'college and other placement services.

Tuesday's Election

During the past week in our daily Independent column we have discussed the five bond issues to be voted on at the Tuesday election. We have stated our reasons for voting "No" on all but one of the issues. We recommend a "Yes" vote on No. 3 and a "No" vote on the other four bond issues. We reluctantly take this attitude. But we feel we have reached a point where state bonds should be confined to only those programs that are essential and that cannot be financed by local areas or private financing. Some of the issues do not even give definite information as to how and where the money will be used.

As to recommendations for individual candidates for elective offices, we are confining our views to these offices where Republican candidates have competition among themselves. We do not presume to make suggestions for the Democratic candidates.

For Governor we recommend Richard Nixon because we consider him the best qualified for the office. However, we would fully support either of his Republican opponents in the final election.

For Lieutenant Governor-George Christopherwho, as Mayor of San Francisco, has proven himself to be a sound administrator and a good campaigner.

For Secretary of State-Frank M. Jordan, who has held that office many years.

For State Treasurer-John A. Busterud-at present a member of the State Assembly.

For Attorney General-Tom Coakley-a Superior Court Judge. We believe Judge Coakley would be a good opponent for the incumbent, Stanley Mosk, in the November election.

For U. S. Senator-Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, who has seniority and who has an excellent chance for Judicial. Of the 47 court seats to be voted on, in only three is there competition. For office No. 2 we recommend Judge Clement D. Nye. For office No. 44 we recommend a vote for Leonard A. Diether, and for office No. 47, where there are 15 candidates, we recommend a vote for Frederick A. Kepka, who has served as a commissioner of the local Superior Court.

School. For Superintendent of Public Instruction we recommend Cecil A. Hardesty-for many years superintendent of the San Diego school system. Nine candidates are seeking this office being vacated by Roy Simpson, Mr. Hardesty has been endorsed by the State Association of School Administrators.

County Assessor. We recommend a vote for John S. Gibson Jr., a long-time member of the L. A. city council from the San Pedro area.

Voters should recognize the fact that this is an important election. It involves bond issues of almost a billion dollars. It also calls for nomination of candidates to oppose the Democratic candidates in November. It is not so much how you vote that is important -but that you discharge your duty as a good citizen to vote.-LA.C.

By MARY ELLIS He's a little man with penetrating eyes.

Georges, Henri LeBarr, as French as the Eiffel Tower, at 70-plus is a small, com-

edge about

everythi n g from food and football to politics and psychology.

He is a part-time vocational counselor, part-time ice skater, part-time this and that, and a full-time thinker. He just loves to think about anything. But mainly about YOU and what makes you tick,

He tells (in no time at all) by merely looking at your face!

A NEAR - FACSIMILE will do. He can look at your photograph and in three minutes, 25 seconds and five languages tell more about you than even your mother knows.

He's been reading faces for umpteen years—in all parts of the world (he's been around the globe five times)

He estimates he's looked at over a half-million mug shots-of rulers, criminals. movie stars, politicians, clubwomen, business leaders, housewives, et al . . . a large majority of whom he can recall instantly with the trip of a mental switch. He has that type of photographic mind. He's examined, analyzed and discussed people of all types, from the crowned heads of Europe to the unshaven domes of inmates in 20 American prisons. Matter of fact, he voluntarily entered and lived within a half-dozen of the latter-just for the experience of sizing up the character and mental traits inherent in some of society's nerent ...... unwanted * * *

PROFESSOR LeBarr he's a prof, incidentally, as well as nutritional expert, grapho-analyst, palm reader and originator of "The Science of Correct Breathing" - has these interesting comments about facial characteristics.

Take profiles: A convex side view, like General MacArthur's, means the individual is quick. If concave, he's slow. Notes about noses: You can have a fighting prohoseis, an easy-going or a just-right one, depending on size, shape and tilt.

Eyes: Large orbs mean a large vocabulary. Small Or your profile's out of ones? You guessed it . . . whack. Are you stuck a small vocabulary. So . . . say you have small eyes. Are you stuck with a small vocabulary?

Brunnettes are thoughtful, dependable, spiritual, conservative, superstitious, stubborn and slow,

He claims he can predict grid games by sizing up opposing coaches, ball games by analyzing pictures of the teams' managers and prize fight by looking over the mugs of contestants,

But he puts thumbs down on horse racing

"A horse has no mind," explains the prof with suitable gestures.

JOHN MANSELL, City Manager: Forehead, broadmindedness; eyes, good perceptions; nose, good mixer; mouth, decisiveness; chin, leadership. THEY FLED TO FREEDOM

As their daughters, Martha, 14, and Yolanda, 11, play catch with a voiley ball, Jose Serra and his attractive wife, Zoila, relax in a Long Beach park. The terror they knew in Castro's Cuba is now only in the magazines they read and their memories.

CONQUEST BY TERROR

How the Reds Killed Cuba

than four hours to any of the most important cities of the East Coast of the United States.

Cuba is ideally located for physical assault as well as well as propaganda assault, which she is already carrying out, against her neighbors. Cuba is an arsenal and distributing point of Communist weapons.

Except for the United States, Cubs now has more military might than any other republic in the Amer-Icas. And a former Soviet general, Enrique Lister, is a top adviser on the use of this strength, cans labeled "preserved fruit." While being lifted from the hold of the ship. some of the cans broke open. The "fruit" inside turned out to be grenades.

LAST JANUARY when Castro spoke in Havana, reiterating his Marxist-Leninist sentiment, Communist leaders from Latin American countries sat on the reviewing stand with him while Soviet weapons paraded down the street.

Cuba has obtained 200,-000 modern small arms from the Communist bloc and has released older weapons, made in the West, for subversive operations elsewhere in the hemisphere. On good authority, shipments of these weapons have entered Nicaragua, Brazil, Mexico, Chile and Ecuador.

CASTRO'S promises of a better life for all have touched a responsive chord in millions of innocent hearts in Latin America. There millions have yet to learn the tragic lesson that Cuba has learned about communism. The Communists are doing everything they can to exploit the hope and trust. They want very badly to communize another Latin American nation very shortly. They want to show a "vote of confidence" in Church).

the Cuban revolution

Every large city of Latin America has been disrupted by demonstrations of violence of Fidelista mobs. Communist agents are working in every Latin American country.

All this is in keeping with Fidel Castro's promise in a speech in Havana on Feb. 4, 1962, that revolution will sweep Latin America "like a march of giants."

This was no idle boast. The Communist takeover in Cuba is "a knock on the

PROJECT MGR. JERRY SENESE Helmet mirror his badge of office

By LOU JOBST

There is a saying among bridgemen that for every million dollars a span costs it will take a human life.

Against those odds the 6,060-foot Vincent Thomas Bridge will kill 24 construction workers before it is completed across the San Pedro Channel in late 1963.

"That saying is utterly, absolutely and com-pletely obsolete," said Bill Choate, a lanky cigar-chewing construction chief who has sent men scrambling up the world's biggest and most dangerous bridge jobs.

These jobs have included the Golden Gate Bridge where 11 men plunged to their deaths, 10 in a single accident, and most recently the 700-foot high Glen Canyon span in southeast Utah.

"The Glen Canyon Bridge cost $4½ million and there wasn't a single fatality," Choate explained.

"This is dangerous work." he admitted and then point-

CHOATE'S conviction, already supported by 12 months work on the giant bridge without a single disabling injury, is shared by other bridge bosses:

Dapper, soft-spoken J. M. Curran, resident engineer for the State Division of Highway's Bridge Department and veteran of 30 years of California bridge construction. A Long Beach resident. Curran was an engineer on the Bay Bridge connecting San Francisco and Oakland.

Bespectacled Jerry Denise, Kaiser Steel Corp's project manager who is visible anywhere on the job site because of the shiny steel helmet he wears. Denise, an architect, has an unenviable dual role—he was the estimator charged with fixing the bridge's price tag and then given the job of seeing Ax Fracas it is done for the amount he chose.

The charges, and answers, add up roughly like this: Richard Haley, director of personnel services for the C.T.A. southern division, says Little Lake teachers are resigning in droves." He says 50 per cent have resigned in two years, that nine of the 11 principals on the payroll in 1959 are no longer with the district.
Supt. Stanley replies: "We have a survey, made by

U.C.L.A. here in 1959, which predicts an annual turnover for this district of 25 per cent. In two years, that's 50 per cent. Before 1959, our resignation rate was 35 per cent. The resignation rate in the next district is 30 per cent, Of those 11 principals, five left here for promotions, one was demoted, two are still with us."

Haley charges: "Teachers have been made to feel by the board, and to some extent by the administration, that they are held in mighty low regard."

Plotkin replies: "Untrue." He points out the board has reduced class sizes from 33 to 28, spent $150,000 for teacher aids, relieved teachers of lunch-hour chores, and otherwise boosted teacher morale. "The teacher is what we are charged with."

Haley charges the board with making threats of pay cuts. Stanley cites the pay scale-starting at $5,400 and going to $9,000, with $750 extra for those who teach 29 days of summer school. Only two teachers received pay cuts in two years, he says, and both because of the closest to the child. It wouldn't make sense to do

Frank McIntyre, director of public relations for C.T.A., says: "We've had a running crisis for a long time, due to intolerable conditions. We can no longer recommend, in good conscience, that our people go there." Plotkin's answer: "We have this crisis every May— ever since we changed our education program." McIntyre says of Plotkin: "He thinks he's God."

Plotkin's answer: "I don't know the man, he doesn't know me. We've never even seen each other. I ran for the school board because my child, in third grade, couldn't read first-grade material. Under our new program, he reads above average for his own grade."

F. LAWRENCE PLOTKIN President of Board

Haley (C.T.A.) says Supt. Stanley brought an unproven morals charge against a teacher.

Stanley pulls out the school board minutes. Such a charge was brought by Stanley, resulting in the suspension of the tenured teacher, who appealed to Superior Court. But in a letter, the teacher dropped his appeal and left the district. The charge thus was never formally aired in court, never proved or disproved.

Of McIntyre's charge of intolerable practices, Plokin "If there are such, why doesn't the C.T.A. bring them to the board?" Haley charges Stanley and the board with conducting secret teacher ratings.

Stanley replies: "We have a usual and normal rating system here. But we do put down the teachers' faults, too. Before 1959, the faults were omitted, but the teacher was not rehired. However, with no list of faults, the teacher's record was good when he applied elsewhere."

The new rating system, Stanley says, is open, the old was not. "The C.T.A, has just reversed the picture

Haley charges Stanley with refusing to meet with a rating follow-up team.

Stanley says he was invited to meet the team-in a motel in Pico during school hours-and refused, but invited the committee to his office.

Plotkin blames the C.T.A. actions on the "fundamental" program. Haley replies that the teachers, in secret vote, approved the program 218-1 (there are 332 teachers in the district. Haley also says the same teachers voted 182 to 35 to apply "sanctions" to the district.

Plotkin cites a recent C.T.A. statement of policy:

"It is time as public educators, that we recognize that we are the experts in the field and that we will design and operate the program we feel best for public educa-

Stanley says "fundamentals" were restored in Little Lake after a survey of 1,172 parents showed the following

Indonesians, Dutch Play Deadly Game

By HAL McCLURE
BIAK, West New Guinea
LT:—Indonesian paratroopers, Dutch military men predict, will continue to pound West New Guinea's Bird's Head area despite current U.N. efforts to settle the dispute over this area.

"And there's precious little we can do about it," one Dutch Marine officer confid-

In the last month Indo-nesian C-47 Dakotas carrying parachutists have easily penetrated Dutch coastal defenses

THE INVADING transports flying without lights, usually strike at dawn to dump their human cargoes into jungles. So far the Dutch have been able to shoot down only one

The Dutch estimate more than 500 Indonesians—a few tough professionals but for the most part civilian "volunteers"-are spread from Kalmana in the south to Sorons on the western tip of the mainland. The bulk of the invaders are in the Vogelkop Peninsula-called Bird's Head be cause of its shape—or just south of it, in the Fak Fak

AS A precautionary movi and to give the military more freedom of action, Dutch women and children have been evacuated from coastal towns near the guerrillas.

"It becomes a game of hide and seek," says Col. G.K.R. de Roos, commander of Royal Marines in New Guinea. They hide in the bush when our boys come along."

The guerrillas, say the Dutch, are on a fifth column mission to convince Papuans and pro-Indonesian residents they should unite behind them to throw out the Dutch.

Both sides have claimed victories in sporadic jungle fighting. The Dutch apparently have succeeded in isolating larger towns—thus prevent-ing the invaders from contacting known pro-Indonesian elements.

THIS LEAVES only inhospitable, disease-ridden mountains and jungles as a field of operations for the Indonesians. The invaders have found little sympathy among the Papuans, the Dutch claim.

About 700,000 Papuans live in this California-size part of New Guinea which is remembered— unfavorably—by U.S. forces who fought here in World War II.

For the most part, whether they live in huts over a malarial coastal swamp or huddle for warmth in the chilly central highlands, the Papu-ans couldn't care less about what is going on.

THEY SPEAK more than 200 known janguages and dialects. They eat pork, sweet potatoes or sago made from bamboo. Some still hunt for heads and prefer human flesh.

The Papuans belong to the Melanesian race, Most have never heard of Indonesia: President Sukarno or Dutch Queen Juliana. Probably a hundred thousand or so have never seen a white man.

Only the coastal Papuar have come under the inflaence of the Dutch or other seafaring people. Indonesia hopes to win over these coastal Papuans who speak Malay the lingua franca of the Indonesian Archipelago.

"BUT INSTEAD of being received with open arms," said De Roos, "These Papuans have reported their whereabouts to us."

For this reason, plus expert tracking by Papuan soldiers, the Dutch assert they have been able to locate most of the invaders.

The trackers—all members of the tiny 250-man Papuan Volunteer Corps — seem among the best in the world They travel light and fast. The volunteers are the nu cleus of a proposed Papuan

Most importantly, the Dutch say, the Papuans along the western coastal areas remember their dark, kinky haired ancestors were tarrets of slave-raiding missions dispatched by Indonesian sultans

India-China Trade Treaty Terminated

dia's eight-year trade treaty with Communist China expired Saturday, a victim of Communist agression on India's northern frontier.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's government, immersed in border troubles with China and Pakistan, was paying little attention to the other Communist spearhead in Asia - the pro-Communist rebel and North Vietnamese attacks in Laos.

Although the scene of the latest Communist advance the Laotian town of Houei Sal, is only 500 airline miles from India's easternmost borders, there has been no reaction to the Lactian crises here for weeks.

Nehru, who is also foreign minister and the only voice that counts in foreign affairs here, has not mentioned Laos since returning from his vacation April 28. It is also worthy of note that Nehru voiced no objection to the shipment of 5,000 U.S. troops to Thailand, although he did object to the U. N. intervention in Korea in 1950.

THE NEW DELHI-Peiping treaty was signed in 1954, in the sunniest period of Com-munist China's "peaceful coexistence" with its Asian neighbors.

But trade slowed to a trickle and the warm rela-tions froze after China crushed the 1959 Tibetan revolt and began its probes ANAHEIM - Delegates across the ill-defined border into Indian territory.
